City May Again Operate Its Own Asphalt Plant

Board of Public Works Decided to Have Estimate Made of Cost of Placing Plant in Shape—Streets, Sewers and Other Matters Considered.

The city asphalt plant near Hasbrouck Park, which has not been used in several years, may again be placed in operation and the board of public works at the regular meeting Tuesday evening decided to obtain an estimate of the cost of placing the plant in operation. The plant originally cost about $15,000 to erect, and since it has not been operated has been damaged considerably.

The question of reopening the asphalt palnt came up when City Engineer G. Wallace Codwise submitted the cost of laying a sheet asphalt pavement in Washington avenue, from Linderman avenue to the Boulevard, and on Main street extension. The cost of laying the pavement in Washington avenue, according to the city engineer's figures, was $14,250, and in Main street, $12,375. In both streets, if the pavement is laid, the property owners pay 75 per cent of the cost.

The board adopted an ordinance establishing the grade in Washington avenue, between Greenkill avenue and the Boulevard. The estimated cost of laying the sheet asphalt pavement in the streets mentioned will be submitted to the interested property owners, and if they desire the work done they will be asked to file a petition with the board.

According to some of the members of the board, sheet asphalt pavement will outlast any other type of pavement now laid in the city. The initial cost of laying it may be a trifle more.

Pave Derrenbacher Street.

Alderman Zach Hermance of the Third ward appeared before the board and filed a petition from the property owners in Derrenbacher street, asking that a bituminous macadam pavement be laid in that street. The city engineer estimated the cost of laying the pavement as $6,460, of which 75 per cent will be paid by the property owners.

The board voted to grant the petition with the understanding that the property owners would set curb and gutter and carry all sewer, water and gas connections to the curb.

Want Sewer Enlarged.

A petition was read from property owners asking that the present sewer in West Pierpont and Hone streets be enlarged to take care of the surface water. It was referred to the street committee.

The question of whether the present Spring street sewer be carried on down to Broadway to connect with the main sewer also came up. It was brought out that the present sewer is hooked into the Wurts street sewer and during heavy rains the sewer is not large enough to care for the surface water and backs up into the cellars of the houses on President's Place. After some discussion the matter was referred to the city engineer to furnish the board with an estimate of the cost of hooking the sewer into the Broadway sewer.

Uptown Parking Discussed.

A letter was read from the Uptown Business Men's Association which stated that at its last meeting a resolution had been adopted that the board of public works allow only one hour parking on the uptown business streets and that the no-left turn into Wall street at North Front street be eliminated.

The matter was thoroughly discussed and the board by a vote of 3 to 2 voted to place in force a rule allowing but two hour parking on Clinton avenue, Wall street, Fair street from Main to North Front street from Clinton avenue to Crown street.

Deed to Len's Court.

Joe Len, the building contractor, in a communication to the board offered to deed Len's Court, between Washington avenue and Warren street, to the city. The Court is situated on the former Myron Teller lot, and at present six houses have been erected on it and four more are to be constructed. Six of the houses face on Washington avenue and four on the Court. Mr. Len plans to build a private sewer in the Court connecting it with the Washington avenue sewer.

The deed was referred to the corporation counsel and the proposition of building the private sewer to the city engineer and superintendent to report back to the board.

Want Street Signs.

Requests were made by Nat Motino of 51 Broadway to erect a revolving barber pole electrically operated in front of his place; Joseph Jacobson asked permission to erect a wooden sign in front of his restaurant at 64 Broadway, and August Murano of 555 Broadway asked permission to erect an electric sign. All three petitions were referred to Superintendent Mills.

Schryver Court Deed.

A deed to Schryver Court located off Henry street, between Pine and Fair streets, was offered the city, and referred to the corporation counsel. It was stated that the owner of the property planned to build a private sewer to connect with the city sewer.

To Draft Ordinance.

After considerable discussion the

Elmira Prisoners Attack Guards

One Prisoner Shot Through the Heart and Another Seriously Wounded—Guard Expected to Recover—First Attempt to Break In 20 Years.

Elmira, N. Y., June 27 (AP).—Attacked by two Elmira reformatory prisoners, one of whom wielded a hoe, Frank Frawley, prison guard, shot one through the heart, seriously wounded the other, and prevented escape of others in a group of 21 he was guarding at the time in an open field.

The dead man is Morris Caster, 18, of Richland. He would have been eligible to parole on October 1. Cecil Berry, 17, of Sandy Creek, the other prisoner, was shot just below the chin, the bullet lodging in the back of his neck. Frawley suffered a possible fracture of the skull, lacerations of the face and head, cuts and bruises on his right hand and left forearm, and a badly sprained back. Both he and Berry are expected to recover, hospital officials here said.

Peter Apenowich, another guard on duty with Frawley, was slightly injured.

The two guards had taken the 21 inmates to the reformatory farm, a half mile from the institution, to plant beans. They were standing near the supply of seed beans when Caster and Berry, with the hoe, approached and attacked them from the rear. When Frawley cried out for help, the other prison inmates came running. After felling the two attackers, Frawley commanded the others at gun point to put up their hands, not knowing whether they were coming to his aid or to the aid of their fellow inmates.

Frawley then called a trusty from the group and sent him to the institution for aid while he commanded the others to stand in their places.

Berry, in a statement made after the attack, according to officials, said he and Caster had planned the break for freedom for several days and had been prepared to stop at nothing to achieve it. Others in the group, the officials of the institutions said, were believed not to have been implicated.

After an investigation by Coroner Hamilton and Supertendent Frank Christian, the Coroner said he would advise the district attorney to bring a charge of murder, first degree, against Berry in the event of Frawley's death. Pending outcome of Frawley's injuries, he said, he would advise lodging of a charge of assault, first degree, against Caster's companion.

The assault on the guards was the first attempted prison break here in 20 years.

Water Board Bids Opened Tuesday

Planning to Build Six Mile Pipe Line From Cooper's Lake to Reservoir No. 2—Bids to be Tabulated and Contract Awarded.

The board of water commissioners held a special meeting Tuesday afternoon to open bids for the construction of the proposed six mile pipe line to convey the water from Cooper's Lake to Reservoir No. 2. The bids were turned over to Sanborn & Bogert, the engineers, who will tabuiate them and the board will meet later to award the contract. About eleven bids were received.

The purpose of the new pipe line is to avoid contamination of the water consumed in Kingston. At the present time the water from Cooper's Lake flows over ground for six miles, emptying into the reservoir. The water as it passes from the lake to the reservoir runs through the village of Woodstock where summer boarders have been in the custom of bathing in the water.

EARLY MORNING CRASH ON THE GLENERIE HILL

The Hudson roadster of John Cashin of Kingston and a Chevrolet coupe of Mrs. Loretta Early of Salem, N. Y., crashed together about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning on the Glenerie hill. Cashin was driving toward this city and Mrs. Early toward Saugerties. With Mrs. Early was her daughter, while Henry Shoffer of Kingston was riding with Cashin. Both cars were damaged.

WEATHER PROGNOSTICATORS SAY RAINY SPELL IS ENDED

The forty day period after Ascension Day ended on Tuesday and that night a terrific rain storm broke over Kingston. According to ancient authorities, if it rained on Ascension Day, and it did, there would be a period of forty days of rain.

With the forty day period now safely past, Kingston residents are hoping that fair weather will follow for the ensuing forty days.

Miss Earhart Busy Packing.

London, June 27 (AP).—Miss Amelia Earhart spent a busy morning packing in preparation for her departure for Southhampton this afternoon. She had to lay in a whole supply of baggage to hold the dozens of frocks and all kinds of apparel which she purchased in London. Mrs. Frederick Guest, her backer in the trans-Atlantic flight of the Friendship, turned her household staff over to the Boston girl to aid the packing activities.

State Objects to Saugerties Road Elimination Plan

Railroad Plan to Eliminate Grade Crossing Near City Line Would Cost More Than State Plan, State Officials Claim—State Plan Would Provide Wider Highway.

There is objection on the part of the State Department of Public Works as well as by several property owners to the scheme prepared and presented by the New York Central engineers for the elimination of the grade crossing on the Saugerties road just outside the city limits. That fact was brought out at an adjourned hearing before H. W. Williams, public service engineer, who held the hearing Tuesday afternoon at the court house. The meeting was called for the purpose of allowing the railroad engineers to submit their scheme to the commission following the submission of a scheme by the State Department of Public Works at a prior hearing. The scheme of the State Department was similar to the one proposed by the railroad engineers except that it provided a wider roadway on the overpass, took advantage of the present curves in the highway and contained turns of lesser sharpness and also called for a five per cent grade instead of a six per cent grade as the railroad plan does. The two plans are very similar in other ways.

Mr. Jaynes of the New York Central engineering staff, presented the plans and also explained to the commission the scheme as presented. F. W. Burleigh appeared for the State Department with Mr. Bogert, local engineer, for the state.

The estimated cost of the scheme as laid out by the railroad would be $164,000, exclusive of land and and damage claims. It is the contention of the railroad that the scheme of the Department of Public Works would cost much more.

Following the presenting of the plans by the railroad, the State Department reserved the right to further examine the plans and in ten days submit full details of objections to the commission.

Says State Plan Costs Less.

It was the contention of the State Department that its scheme as presented at a prior hearing would cost less than the railroad plan. Mr. Burleigh objected to the scheme of the railroad on the specific grounds that it called for the injection in the elimination of curves, which the department was endeavoring to eliminate. The plan, he said, called for 500 foot radius curves which were too sharp and gained nothing in safety from the viewpoint of the traveling public. He also objected to the width of the roadway on the overpass and stated it was a waste of time and money to build overhead crossings of a lesser width than 40 feet. The department was attempting to eliminate present narrow crossings as rapidly as possible and it was a waste of time for the railroad to come in with plans for a narrow roadway at a time when the department was attempting to remedy that condition.

The scheme of the department called for 560,000 pounds of steel and this Mr. Jaynes said would cost nearly double the estimated price of the department estimate and thus their plan would cost far in excess of what the department had estimated.

Objection to Narrow Bridge.

Mr. Burleigh also objected to the grade called for by the railroad plan which calls for a six per cent grade while the department plan calls for a five per cent grade. If a narrow bridge was built it would be but a question of five or ten years before the state would have to petition to widen the bridge and to prove that fact figures were cited on registration of motor cars in the past few years. In 1915 there were but 234,032 vehicles registered. In 1927 that amount had increased to 1,361,107, and it was estimated that the present year registration would exceed 2,000,000.

May Widen West Park Overpass.

The width of the roadway south of Kingston was cited by the railroad and the Rondout Creek bridge was also cited as a structure which the department had built within a few years which was narrower than the proposed Saugerties road crossing. The overpass at West Park was also cited and Mr. Burleigh stated that the state now was about to petition to widen that crossing bridge to take care of increasing traffic. One mistake, he said, did not justify another. The department was trying to build structures to take care of future traffic. The road 9-W on the east side of the river was being widened as rapidly as possible to give a 30 foot travel lane. This work was already in progress to the south of Newburgh and by the end of 1929 plans would be made for the entire road to Albany. It was hoped the road would be completed all the way to Albany by 1930. The present narrow concrete would be widened to the 30 foot width and new construction would be to that width. At present this work was being projected as far north as Kingston and in 1929 it would be projected to the north. Surveys have already been made south of the city.

The railroad was willing to go along with the state in the improvement but objected to the wider roadway at the Saugerties crossing unless the department showed the necessity.

Ten days were given the depart-

Postage Rate Cut on July 1

New Rates Go Into Effect First of Month, Postmaster Walter P. Crane Announces—Postcards to be Reduced to One Cent.

Substantial savings will be enjoyed by Kingstonians under the new postage rates which go into effect July 1, it has been announced by Postmaster Walter P. Crane.

The rate for souvenir postcards is reduced from two cents to one cent, and newspapers and magazines may be mailed at a cent for each two ounces, which is half the present rate.

There is also a reduced rate on air mail which is effective August 1, when the rates are split from ten cents a half ounce to five cents for the first ounce and ten cents for each additional ounce.

An additional charge, however, is made on first class mail on which there is postage due. On pieces of mail on which there is more than two cents due, the charge will be three cents an ounce instead of the present two cents.

Patrons of the register service will be able to protect themselves from loss up to $1,000 instead of the present limit of $50, by means of sliding rates ranging from fifteen cents for $50 to a dollar for $1,000.

The parcel "special handling" flat rate of twenty-five cents is revised. The new rates are: Under two pounds, ten cents; two to ten pounds, fifteen cents; over ten pounds, twenty cents. Special delivery may be secured by additional payment of fifteen cents, twenty-five cents and thirty-five cents, according to the above weight limits.

Will Carry On Fight, Says Reed

Houston, June 27 (AP).—Brushing aside talk of the vice presidency, Senator Reed of Missouri was rallying his forces about him for a fight to the finish on the presidency today as his allies from the south against Governor Smith turned their attention to the impending battle for a dry plank in the platform.

The militant Missourian gave formal notice again last night that he meant business when he issued a statement denying a story published indicating that Reed and his friends were now looking longingly at the vice presidency.

"We will carry on the fight in good faith to the very end and hope to win," he said. "We have not made any trades for or considered any other position than the presidency. I have refused at least 100 times to permit discussion or consideration of that matter.

Earlier in the night, Reed had issued a new blast against Herbert Hoover and his war record as food administrator, charging that the Republican nominee had fixed prices on American farm products during the war for the purpose of benefiting the British and the Allies. The statement was part of his drive for the presidency and included a plea for farm relief along any lines constitutional.

But the drys from the southland were less inclined to think about the presidency today as the mounting tide of Smith strength seemed to assure his nomination on an early ballot and they were busily engaged in the desperate contest to obtain at least a dry plank in the platform.

MODERN WAREHOUSE TO BE BUILT ON TEN BROECK AVE.

A modern warehouse will be constructed in the near future by the Colonial Trucking Company, now situated at 610½ Broadway, on a parcel of land, 140 by 160 feet, at 81 Ten Broeck avenue, adjoining the West Shore railroad. An office has already been completed at 81 Ten Broeck avenue into which the firm will move on July 1.

The plans for the new warehouse, which are being carefully inspected by the officials of the company, call for a modern building in every respect. Business firms of this and other cities will be able to use the building, which the Colonial Trucking Company will build to handle more efficiently its increasing business. It is planned to lay a side track from the railroad to the warehouse as one of the conveniences.

State Bankers Elect Officers.

Saranac Lake, N. Y., June 27 (AP).—The New York State Bankers Association elected officers at the closing meeting of its 35th convention today at Saranac Inn. Those elected include Michael H. Cahill, Utica, president; Arthur W. Loasby, New York city, vice president; Edward J. Gallien, New York, secretary, and William H. Radcliff, Nyack, treasurer.

Coolidge Will Decide Later.

Superior, Wis., June 27 (AP).—President Coolidge has made no plans as yet to participate in the forthcoming political campaign. Definite decision on what his activities, if any, will be, will be reached by him later when he shall have had the opportunity to consider more carefully the situation.

Goldman Was Discharged.

After a hearing in police court this morning Morris Goldman, arrested by Officer Leonard who charged him with violation of the taxi ordinance in soliciting fares while standing more than five feet from his cab at the Rhinebeck ferry, was discharged by Judge Shufeldt.

Bowers Assault On Republicans Cheered to Echo

Demonstrations Follow Praise of Woodrow Wilson and Demand That the Hand of Republican Oppression be Removed From the Throat of the Farmer—Rain Pours Through Roof.

Houston, June 27 (AP).—While the Democratic sifting [illegible] went on toward a decision in committee room and caucus, the national convention turned again to that great American political pastime of stump speaking to fill up with partisan ferror its second daylight session.

This time the center of the speaking stage, held for a colorful hour last night by the convention keynoter, was assigned to Robinson of Arkansas, long a Democratic stalwart, leader of his party in the Senate, and out in front among the candidates for second place on the party ticket. His installation as permanent chairman of the big quadrennial powwow furnished the occasion for a preaching of the Democratic gospel with the embellishment of that pungent phraseology and commanding gesture of which he is master. His exhortation and a few technicalities of organization made up the budget of the session.

Delegates Hoarse From Cheering.

The second day of the convention found many of the delegates already hoarse from cheering—and with much more cheering to come. Crowding into Sam Houston Hall last night in the wake of a downpour of rain that spilled waterspouts through the roof and drove temperatures downward to a point of real comfort, both delegates and spectators cheered to the echo a rousing Democratic assault on Republicans and all its works, delivered by the temporary chairman and keynoter, Claude G. Bowers of New York. Twice he stirred his hearers to crashes of noisy approval that ranked almost as demonstrations—once when he praised Woodrow Wilson, and again when he demanded that the hand of Republican oppression be removed from the throat of the farmer.

Some Real Demonstrations.

Before the convention goes to bed tonight it may have seen some real demonstrating, for there is a possibility that nomination speeches for presidential candidates may be made at the evening session.

Although the battle over first place on the ticket is conceded generally to have about ended in victory for Governor Smith, much interest centered today in caucuses by the delegations from Ohio and Oklahoma, the last to decide where they will go on the first roll call. The two state meetings were called for the same hour, a little in advance of the time set for opening the convention itself. It was unquestioned that a decision to throw to Smith at once the Ohio and Oklahoma votes his managers expect him to get eventually, would settle the whole question on the first ballot.

The other headliner among convention disputes, the disagreement over a prohibition plank, was having its inning meantime before the platform committee, with more than a possibility that in the end it would have to be disposed of on the floor of the convention itself.

"Bone Drys" Organize.

Last night a group of Democratic "Bone Drys" organized to war for a party declaration endorsing the dry laws without qualification, already a contingent on the other side had asked the platform committee to put in a plank for modification. It is expected that the bulk of the Smith strength, constituting an overwhelming majority of the convention, will reject both of these proposals and accept instead a pronouncement for enforcement of the constitution and the law.

Convention officials, while thankful for the decided drop in temperature that followed last night's thundershower, hoped today that if any more rain is to fall during the convention period it will not come down either during or immediately preceding a session in newly erected Sam Houston Hall.

Some of the arriving delegations for the evening session found their floor sections soaked, and water still dripping merrily down from the wet rafters after the shower was over. A small torrent had descended on the speakers' stand itself, and telegraph instruments in the nearby press section were flooded out. But the storm had ended in time to permit the evening session to proceed in comparative comfort, with only a stray drop projecting itself downward here and there to surprise an unsuspecting delegate.

Bowers Raps Republicans.

Anyway, the perversity of the elements was quickly forgotten when Chairman Bowers warmed up to his speech. The keynoter, an editorial writer for the New York Evening World, is a small man with a not overly-large voice. But he lashed out his sentences against the Republicans like a baseball pitcher throwing curves, and the delegates liked it. The amplifiers carried so well that he kept the attention of the folks in the farthest bleachers so distant that they must have been unable to distinguish much of the physical lineaments of the man who was addressing them.

Applause accompanied the speech all the way, as the speaker reviewed the oil scandal, recalled how Daugherty was driven from the cabinet, traced out the goings and comings of Will Hays with the celebrated

Smith Shows No Emotion

Governor Listens to Keynote Speech With Poker Face Turned Toward Reporters—Has No Comment to Make.

Albany, N. Y., June 27 (AP).—[illegible] delegates of the convention that is reported to nominate him for the presidency may arouse some emotion in the breast of Governor Alfred E. Smith, but it doesn't show in his face nor is it translated into words.

The governor listened to the keynote speech by Claude G. Bowers at the executive mansion with a poker face turned toward the Capitol reporters he had invited to hear the address.

"Have you any comment to make?" they asked at the adjournment of the session until today.

"Absolutely none," he replied. "This is a social evening."

Besides the reporters, among others who listened beside the radio in the executive mansion were Major John A. Warner, superintendent of the State Troopers and the Governor's son-in-law, and Mrs. Warner, the former Emily Smith; George B. Graves, the Governor's secretary; Secretary of State Robert Moses, William Humphrey, former chief of the New York Central police and a personal friend of the Governor's, and Dr. and Mrs. Henry Moskowitz of New York, guests at the mansion during the convention period. None of them had any comment to make on the Bowers speech.

After the convention adjourned the Governor posed for photographs with his daughter and son-in-law, and his Great Dane, Jefferson.

Gets Trout From Monticello.

The governor accepted three gifts yesterday; a brown derby, a bunch of four leaf clovers, and a string of 13 trout from an admirer in Monticello.

The derby was one of four received from admirers in the day's mail and the governor donned it in his office to show reporters that it was a worthy successor of other similar war bonnets which have been worn during his political campaigns of the past quarter century.

The bunch of clovers was presented by a woman state employe and the governor was very evidently pleased with it and its implication of good luck; so much so indeed that he seemed to see nothing to worry about in the fact that the unlucky number 13 figured in the present of trout.

The governor spent the opening day of the convention hard at work on state business. When the leaders of his party opened the session at Houston he was so engrossed at a meeting of the state building sites commission that he rose and closed the door of the meeting room to shut out the noise of a radio in his outer office which was reporting the convention doings.

In late afternoon he broke away for a short game of golf and then went to the executive mansion for dinner prior to tuning in on the convention's first night session.

No Opposition To Bus Route

There was no opposition to the proposed extension of the bus route of Henry F. Myers of Rosendale when that matter came up for a hearing before M. W. Williams of the Public Service Commission at the court house Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Myers, who now operates the Rosendale bus line, proposes to extend his route from Lawrenceville up the Beach road to Binnewater and then over Sawdust avenue to the four corners at Cottekill and back to the Silas Auchmoody place at Lawrenceville, over the back road and to the place of beginning. Until the road is in proper shape to make safe operation of a large bus, he will operate a seven passenger car over the route. The hearing was adjourned subject to the call of the commission. Lloyd R. LeFever appeared for Mr. Myers.

New Cabinet Formed.

Warsaw, Poland, June 27 (AP).—The cabinet of Marshall Pilsudski resigned today and a new cabinet under M. Bartels has been formed.

Sinclair bonds, attacked Secretary Mellon as a Republican dictator without sympathy for Democratic government, and fired a few shots at the protective tariff.

Farm Relief Demonstration.

The farm relief demonstration interrupted the hour's speech about midway. It began when one of the official convention bands struck up a noisy air as the delegates were on their feet cheering. As the band joined in, a North Dakota delegate took up the standard of his state and carried it eastward and forward across the front of the hall. For a while he was a one-man parade, but other state standards fell into line as the music and cheering went on and ten minutes had elapsed before the place cards of the states all were back at their stations.

During all of this time the great bulk of the delegates remained in their places, and the parade seemed composed of only two or three marchers for each state started. Many who did not march, however, then joined in the cheering and urged the demonstrators to prolong their tramp about the hall.

The evening keynote was an innovation, designed to bring this part of the convention to the ears of the greatest possible audience of radio listeners.

Commencement High School, 144 Students in Class

Roster of Honor Students of Class Present Allegory, "Everyyouth Faces the Future"—Awarding of Prizes an Interesting Feature—Students Receive Their Diplomas.

[illegible] class that has ever received diplomas from the graduates of the [illegible] gathered in the high school auditorium [illegible] to participate in the [illegible] Annual Commencement exercises of that institution. But somehow [illegible] more impressed with the character and records of the class than with its size. The commencement exercises were in the nature of an allegory in which "Everyyouth Faces the Future" together with the awarding of prizes for the best year in the entire high school course and the presentation of diplomas. Here were flowers, everywhere, baskets and bouquets on the front of the stage and all on the window ledges. The graduating class, with all of the girls wearing simple white dresses, passed through a vine covered gateway upon the stage to their seats, just a bit back of a garden-like arrangement at the front.

The program opened with music, march from "Norma," by Bellini, which was followed by the invocation, given by the Rev. C. E. Brandorff, pastor of the Church of the Redeemer.

Principal Van Ingen acted again as master of ceremonies and announced the presentation of "Everyyouth Faces the Future," as presented by the highest honor students of the class.

Everyyouth Wants to Know.

"Everyyouth," (Herrick Schoonmaker) standing alone and facing responsibility as never before appeared in cap and gown, worn upon his commencement day. Away from the crowd of his associates he became seriously anxious as to what life might really offer him and called upon the Spirit of Life (Margaret Brown) to tell him what was before him.

The Spirit of Life in simple Greek draperies came to him and listening to his plea, told him that she would call upon her aids, Friendship, Culture, Health, Good Cheer, Sorrow, Religion and Courage, and they should tell him what they had to offer him.

A Greek-robed Friendship (Olive Kyer) appeared and told of all the joys, and the inspiration and encouragement, the understanding and loyalties of Friendship as well as the responsibilities on Everyyouth's part in being a friend if he would have one. Everyyouth accepted her invitation to accompany him through life.

Still another figure in Greek costume—Culture (Margaret Donald) showed Everyyouth the advantages of becoming acquainted with the better things of life, art that was beautiful, music that was inspiring, above all literature that was informing, standard-setting, elevating in character and form if he would gain real happiness and count as his peers worthwhile folks of his time.

The last of the Grecian-like maidens to visit Everyyouth in his search for the solution of the problems of life was Health (Caroline Port), who proved the incalculable aid of health for efficiency, enjoyment, successful struggle in life, one might say the absolute necessity of Health.

Contrasting Characters.

From the other side of the stage there then appeared in flowing togas, the competely opposite characters of Good Cheer and Sorrow, each in turn. Good Cheer (Clifford Miller) came to lighten every phase of life, to carry the Christmas spirit throughout each year, to stimulate and enrich. Everyyouth found him a welcome if not expected companion, but shrank in fear from Sorrow (Sergio Sanrez). Yet Sorrow showed the lessons of sympathy, kindness and thoughtfulness to be learned from sorrow if accepted for its true worth and cherished, not feared.

Accepting the truth of what Sorrow had to say, Everyyouth still hesitated, then called for Religion (Sylvia Kline), who came most gladly when called even though frequently ignored by Everyyouth in the past. She showed how futile is life without Religion, for [illegible] brings God to man and God is an absolute necessity to man. Without Him there can be no real purpose in life, a continual emptiness in place of service of fellowman. Religion brings prayer which [illegible] into life and [illegible] understanding inspiration, support, confidence and the one staff upon which to lean when sorrows [illegible].

And then came Everyyouth Courage (Harold Dart), whose [illegible] was for courage of character, moral courage, the courage of right in the courage of convictions, in courage. In the social world, in religion and in politics, we all should be absolutely prepared at any time to go forth to win success of the highest sort in life.

Everyyouth Accepts Friends.

Accepting all that these friends had pointed out, Everyyouth held out his hand to Life and together they entered upon the Future.

It will be of special interest to many in that large audience to know that the entire program was worked out and developed by the students themselves, with the aid of the English department, while the text of each character was entirely original with the boy or girl representing the character.

Then came two songs by the

MARLBOROUGH

Marlborough June 27.—Mrs. James Eddy of Cold Spring was the guest the past week of Mrs. Herbert Hillinder.

Mrs. John O'Neil of Walkill is spending a few weeks with Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Morehead.

Mrs. Jonas Stephens is recovering satisfactorily from her recent illness.

June 17. Mr. and Mrs. John McCarthy and son, and Miss Margaret Hines attended the wedding of Katherine Eigo and John Edwards of Kingston. The wedding was followed by a breakfast and reception at Golden Rule Inn on Mirror Lake.

Mrs. John DuBois spent Monday in New York city.

Local people were much interested on Friday afternoon to see a novel house on wheels go through the village. The house is a log cabin but instead of being split logs it is a section of one big log. Inside the huge hollowed out section of the tree trunk is a completely equipped home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Clark and son, Casper and grandson, Ralph, visited their daughter, Mrs. Gedney Mackey, Jr., in Milton on Sunday evening.

The Rev. J. D. Piper occupied the pulpit of the Chintondale Friends' Church on Sunday morning in the absence of the pastor, the Rev. Levinus K. Painter. Two weeks ago the Rev. Mr. Piper had charge of the services at the Wildemere at Lake Minnewaska. Mr. and Mrs. Piper spent the week end at the lake.

On Friday evening, the alumni of the Marlborough High School entertained the senior class at the Pine Tree Inn at Middlehope.

Daniel J. Gaffney of New Paltz called on friends here Saturday.

The Misses Lucy and Margaret Humis returned to their home in Jersey City after spending a week at the home of Mrs. John Cooney.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Steffins, John Steffins and Mrs. Phreston Baxter attended the funeral of Charles Ladin at Fishkill on Monday. Mr. Ladin was a former resident here.

Mr. and Mrs. James Tuthill of Highland spent Sunday evening at the home of the Misses Mary and Sarah Newell.

Mr. and Mrs. Stabler were weekend guests of Mrs. Crook.

The Rev. J. F. Hanley is attending the annual retreat at Dunwoodie this week.

Mrs. Hewitt of Gardiner town is visiting her son, Samuel Hewett.

Mrs. Calvin Wygant, Jr., and Miss Helen Carpenter returned to Marlborough on Tuesday from Morenci, Michigan, where they attended the wedding of Miss Madelyn Wilson and Dr. Elmer Raabe. The June bride was one of Mrs. Wygant's bridesmaids. The trip to Morenci, which is near Detroit, was made in Mrs. Wygant's car.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Lawes visited Mr. and Mrs. George Fowler in Peekskill on Sunday.

Humphrey Sutcliffe of Miami, Fla., was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Wygant seven days last week.

The faculty of the Marlborough High School entertained the senior class at a dinner on Saturday at the Palatine Hotel in Newburgh. Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Goldy were present as honorary guests.

Miss Mary Newell of Highland is spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Newell.

Mrs. William Hopkins and son, Vincent, of Waterbury, Conn., are visiting her sister, Mrs. James McGowan.

Thomas Kelly and family of New Jersey called on friends here Saturday and Sunday.

James Cooney of Jersey City spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Cooney.

John F. Barry has returned to Staten Island after a visit of two weeks with his brother, C. H. Barry.

Letters and pamphlets sent by Mrs. Salisbury from the Navajo Indian reservation, made up the most of the program at the very interesting meeting of the Presbyterian Missionary Society held Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Florence Ogden was leader for the day and Mrs. William Wygant was hostess.

The Rev. and Mrs. George E. Montrose of Spencertown, formerly of Marlborough, attended the high school graduating exercises here on Monday evening.

Mrs. C. B. Driscoll and sons, Donald and Ronald, of Atlantic City, N. J., are spending a week with Mrs. Driscoll's father, Alex Lyons, and sister, Mary I. Lyons.

Helen Knight and Florence Mackey are visiting the Rev. and Mrs. G. E. Montrose at Spencertown.

Matthew McCourt, who for several years has been in charge of the office of the Central Hudson Steamboat Company at Marlborough, has left that organization and taken a position as office manager for McGowan brothers, fruit truckers and garage owners. Arthur Warren has taken Mr. McCourt's place at the dock. Mr. Warren was formerly with the Colonial S. S. Line.

Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. D. S. Hutchins the W. C. T. U. will meet.

Monday, July 9, the C. D. of A. will hold a card party for members in their rooms in St. Mary's Hall, after the regular monthly meeting.

The Marlborough monthly meeting of the Friends' Church was held in Plattekill on Saturday.

Adam Knaust of Marlborough has been making alterations on the "Elms" south of Milton.

Florence Mackey, who is also valedictorian, was president of the senior class of the Marlborough High School, Clarence was vice president, Helen Knight secretary and Helen Dowd treasurer. Miss Ruth Hopkins was faculty adviser for the class. The other four seniors are Ruth Sears, Marie Carell, Patrick Newell and Alvin Mahler. Copies of the "Pioneer" the high school annual, were sold at the reception following the commencement exercises on Monday evening. The book was unusually attractive this year with leather finish, purple cover, lettered in gold. Helen Knight was editor, Clarence Feltes, manager; Alvin Mahler, joke editor, and Ruth Sears, literary editor. A large number of books were sold.

W. T. Velie and son, H. Townsend Velie, of the Valley Fruit Farm, Marlborough, are adding to their cold storage facilities by remodeling an old fashioned cooler on the farm.

John Manton is keeping eight trucks busy hauling sand to the Highland-Poughkeepsie bridge. The sand is being taken from Rosioff's bank above Marlborough village. It is used for concrete.

Rena O'Brien has returned home after spending several weeks with friends in Brooklyn.

The Chauncey Scott residence in West Marlborough is being stuccoed this week. Frank Harton has charge of the job.

The second and third grades of the Marlborough school enjoyed an end-of-the-term picnic together on Thursday. The boys of the two classes organized baseball teams for the occasion. The second grade defeated the third by an overwhelming score of 38 to 5.

Praise is something everyone likes, yet the most of us give little of it. Praise will cause men to work much faster and harder than scolding or criticism. Criticism helps in a constructive way. Praise makes the world a happier sphere on which to live and helps keep it going around. Praise is something the husband should have for his wife's cooking and his wife for her husband's workaday efforts. It is something the employer should give his employees occasionally. Employees might startle the boss some day by praising him.

Most conducive to scientific research is the California seagull to which a kind lady threw popcorn and then, quite accidentally, her $1,200 diamond ring. Do gulls have habits, and is this one likely to return frequently to the pier where he got the popcorn and ring? Can the local gulls be discovered at home and forced to pass before an X-ray tube which will give the desired inside information? asks the Baltimore Sun. And now callous citizens realize their folly in that they did not cherish the birds and train them to come trustfully to hand at a call!

DEAR OLD AUNTY KNOCK!

What a Mammy she is to Noisy Motors!
Aunty Knock (nickname for TYDOL ETHYL) acts on a fretful motor like a crooning lullaby on a peevish babe. It quiets all the meanness out of it . . . hushing the "ping" and pound in irritable cylinders, and making the whole engine purr with a new contentment.
But TYDOL ETHYL does more than "knock the knock." It increases the power . . . gives faster starting, quicker pick-up, lessened gear-shifting and MORE MILEAGE. It makes carbon a friend instead of a foe, converting it into a power-maker.
You don't know the half of motoring pleasure until you've added TYDOL ETHYL wings to your car. Let Aunty Knock ride with you!
IT'S RED! You can see it's red in the color gauge at the orange, black and GRAY TYDOL ETHYL pumps.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 27, 1928.

A "Poetry House" or "meeting place for poets and lovers of poetry" has been opened in Greenwich Village, New York city, and its moving spirit defensively states that when Lord Bryce came as Ambassador from Great Britain 20 years ago he told her that America's greatest need was poets. Greenwich Village already has a crop of "free verse" writers, but whether they are supplying our national lack is at least open to debate.

Prof. C. T. Dowell, of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Oklahoma, is not at all worried by the trek from farm to city. Our land policy has always been wrong, he says. We have had too many acres under the plow. With better means of production, our food supplies and other agricultural products have outrun the growth of population. Millions have left the farms, and still there are too many farmers. "We should stop our talk about people leaving the farm, and try to encourage them to go to town," he says. Most of those who quit farming are inefficient anyway. "Economic conditions on the farm are forcing the inefficient farmer out, and this is as it should be, and will finally help farmers in general." There is no more use in having too many farmers than too many coal miners.

The eloquent automobile man writes: "If Socrates could walk into the headquarters of the Athens Board of Trade tomorrow, he could look over the records of automobile dealers, study the results of business in 1927, and ponder over the fact that in the northern Greek provinces of Macedonia and Thrace there are approximately 3,000 motor vehicles in operation." Very likely, too, old Socrates would be interested in those statistics, as he was in all things human—if you can call statistics human. But alas! Poor old Socrates had his limitations. He would doubtless start, right off the bat, an interminable dialogue with the statistician, the business manager and the press agent. He would demonstrate to everybody's stupefaction, along about sunrise the next morning, that a gasoline chariot wasn't essential to pursuit of the real goal of existence—attainment of the ultimately true and beautiful

PLENTY OF NEWS.

There surely is no reason for anyone to find the news dull or monotonous. For a while there were people who complained that there was nothing in the papers but crime news. Of course they were wrong. There was a vast amount of other news which the critics missed because they were so busy reading the crime stuff.

Lately, however, such crimes as there have been, have been forced to a lower place in public interest because of all the other events that have been going on. Beginning no farther back than the German-Irish transatlantic flyers, readers have had their choice of interest among the Wilkins polar flight, the Japanese-Chinese mix-up, a peace conference in Cleveland, the ocean-to-ocean foot race, party primaries, new oil scandal revelations and Nobile's arctic explorations.

The public gives impartial attention to anything and everything. It's a lively old world, with enough constructive, good things going on to justify faith in spite of the occasional bad things and the numerous foolish things. And nothing shows this more plainly than the great variety of good, bad and indifferent news.

SIMPLE ARITHMETIC.

With all the ill nature at the command of a chronic evasionist, Governor Smith heatedly resents immutable rules of simple arithmetic that prove his fiscal claims to be bunk. This is, avers the Tammany Executive in his latest financial review, "the open season for wild and exaggerated statements" with regard to state finance.

The Governor then proceeds, naively, verbosely and inaccurately, to find justification for a disastrous Tammany fiscal policy in the fact that a surplus of about thirteen and a half million dollars is estimated at the close of business on June 30, 1929.

Twelve and a half million dollars of this claimed surplus is due to a deficiency tax, known as the direct property tax, levied upon and paid on demand of the Governor by the last legislature. This leaves a scant one million dollars indicated surplus at the close of the coming fiscal year, solely derived from fortuitous sources, i.e., taxes on an exceptional stock turnover in Wall Street and inheritance taxes swollen by reason of the death of several multimillionaires.

Revenue from all tax sources has increased from approximately $600,000,000 in 1924 to an estimated $816,000,000 for the coming fiscal year. That this is due to an unprecedented era of prosperity, even Governor Smith will not have the hardihood to deny. That any recession in general business means a shrinking in State revenues and increased taxation, the Governor must admit, even though he finds the logic unpalatable.

The Tammany Spender, however, has not been content with dissipation of the State's unusual revenues. He has run the State into debt to the tune of an authorized $465,000,000. At the same time he has sponsored tax rebates balancing all cash expenditures to date from these bonded funds, thereby adding upward of one hundred per cent to construction costs by reason of interest rates over the life of bonds issued.

Hurling invective at arithmetical equations impossible of logical controversion does not justify Tammany's unsound and costly financial practices.

VALUE OF INTELLIGENCE TESTS.

It was my privilege some time ago, by request of the government, to make an examination of the boys of a reformatory school. The general condition physically with recommendations regarding deficiencies and deformities, teeth, tonsils, and so forth, was duly tabulated.

Associated with me was a professor of psychology who by intelligence tests gave each boy his rating mentally.

Two boys were found to be over 100 per cent mentally, most were between 70 and 90 per cent, whilst some went as low as 60 per cent.

During my examination I took the opportunity to estimate each boy's intelligence by the answers he gave to my questions and the manner in which he obeyed my instructions. I got considerable satisfaction out of finding that my estimate of the boys' intelligence, with one exception was the same as that of the mental examiner. I of course concluded that he was right in this case as this was his particular job.

And yet as I thought the matter over at the time I wondered if these intelligence tests really gave a correct estimate of the boy's ability to get on with his fellow men, his ability to make a living out in the world.

And now some one has pointed out that "a child with high intelligence may have such a disagreeable personality as to cause his life to be a failure, whereas a so-called moron (one below normal mentality), may succeed in life and even hold positions of trust.

The intelligence test does not measure emotions.

Now the reason that many of these reform boys made good although they were below normal mentally was because they were taught trades, were made to do chores, were taught to play band instruments and so forth. And last but not least they were placed on different kinds of athletic teams and thus learned to play.

And you will remember what we've had to say about play.

The boy must do his part in the game whether pitching, catching, fielding, playing scrimmage, half back or line man, defence centre or forward.

He must learn to control his temper, must not be selfish in his play, and learn how to take a defeat and how to take a success.

You can readily see then that while intelligence tests are useful that a boy who has learned to take his knocks, to respect the other fellow's rights, to be willing to do his own work and sometimes the other fellow's also, is going to be a "useful member of the community." The intelligence test does not measure emotions, courage, leadership, or companionability. And that is what counts as a citizen, your ability to help, to fit in with others.

Judges in juvenile courts tell us that juvenile crime decreases where playgrounds are established.

Play makes a boy a better citizen in every way.

See that your child plays.

HOW

ONE'S VARIATION IN LIKES MAY BEST BE DISCOVERED—By experiment, research, psychologists are proving that the general interests of men following the same vocations tend to resemble and that this group of interests differs as widely from those men in other callings as do the vocations themselves. The particular prejudices of artists and personnel managers, for instance, have been proved to be almost diametrically opposite. There is apparently a distinct artist type of mind, a doctor type, a personnel manager type, an engineer type, quite apart from professional differences.

Thus by recording and scoring a man's likes and dislikes on hundreds of miscellaneous subjects, many psychologists now believe that they obtain an objective picture of his true interests.

The theory is that one likes things one does easily. A man therefore likes and succeeds in an occupation in which the majority of his well-developed traits may function and his poorly developed traits are not forced to function. So the summary of likes and dislikes of men in a given occupation is probably a summary measure of the traits necessary for success in that occupation.—Thrift Magazine.

How "Riot Act" Became Part of Common Law

"Reading the Riot act" was suggested by the Riot act, which was enacted by the British parliament in 1714 during the first year of the reign of King George I. Although laws had been previously passed on the subject, the Riot act was the first comprehensive attempt to prevent or suppress tumultuous or riotous meetings. It provided that if twelve or more persons were unlawfully assembled and disturbing the peace, the sheriff, justice of the peace, or mayor was commanded to read the following proclamation in their presence: "Our Sovereign Lord the King chargeth and commandeth all persons being assembled immediately to disperse themselves, and peacefully depart to their habitations or to their lawful business, upon the pains contained in the act made in the first year of King George for preventing tumultuous and riotous assemblies. God save the King." If the persons refused to disperse and continued together for an hour or more, they were guilty of felony. Many of the American states have enacted similar laws. "To read the Riot act" literally means to give notice to a crowd to disperse under penalty of law. Popularly it means to give warning calling for reformation or to rebuke severely.

How Golf Clubs Are Made

The making of golf clubs requires eighteen steps. The work is generally done under the close supervision of a golf professional during the off season.

Very few kinds of special woods are used in the clubs. Special second-growth hickory is usually selected for the shaft. It must be neither too springy nor too stiff.

The raw wood is sawed into square sticks, which are picked over and over again, then stored away and seasoned for two years before they are ready to be turned and tapered and pointed to a rivetion. Most of them are shaped and smoothed and finished by hand.

The head is made of persimmon wood.

How a Drop Falls

To watch a drop of water when it falls is to attempt to penetrate the secret of an obscure science, the law which governs moving liquids.

The experiment best showing the action of a falling drop may be made by letting a drop of milk fall into black coffee. When the drop falls a crater forms around it and little drops are projected from the edge of the crater. After it has increased in size and in thickness the crater lowers and widens its rolling brim, while from the impact a liquid sphere, enveloped by the initial drop, collects at the top of the column. Then the column falls and disappears in the center of a circular ripple of water. —Washington Star.

How Pollen Is Carried

Two of nature's pollen carriers are insects and wind, but in the forest wind does by far the greater amount of the work, says Nature Magazine. The tree flowers having only stamens shed their pollen, wither, and fall, but from the seed-producing flowers grow the fruits—keys of the maples, samaras of the elms, paddles of the ashes, acorns of the oaks, the cone-like winged seed bearers of the birches, and the nuts of the hickories.

How Soap Is Wasted

The soap wasted by hard water amounts to 17 pounds per 1,000 gallons when water is 10 grains hard per gallon. This is estimated as an expense of 70 cents, when it would cost perhaps 2 cents per 1,000 gallons on an average to soften such water.

How to Preserve Coconut

A coconut in its shell may be kept almost indefinitely if it is stored in a cool place. It is not necessary to remove the milk.

Goodrich Silvertowns

THE PLATE GLASS TEST. Pressing this heavy glass against the tread shows why the triple-grooved Silvertown tread gives extra mileage. See facts below.

By this Discovery

Silvertowns prevent wasteful tread wear on millions of cars!

WHAT you see under the plate glass, happens about 300 times a minute at every point on your tire, when you drive your car.

Like a flash, the tread must flatten as it meets the road, for balloon tires are soft.

So Goodrich Silvertowns are built to flatten without distortion—free from bulky blocks in the center—protected from "piling up" or uneven choppy wear of the tough tread rubber.

As dealers, we know what this means. It means thousands of extra miles of service, if you buy Goodrich Silvertowns.

Come in. Let us tell you all the other features of these famous tires. Our expert service and cheerful courtesy make it an added pleasure for you to trade here.

1.—The Only Unanimously Elected President

THE founding fathers, who framed the Constitution in the belief that our Presidents would be elected by a group of staid and steady councilors of state, the electoral college, unassisted by partisanship, would be surprised and dumfounded by the hurrah and bullabaliu accompanying the modern American party nominating convention.

The first national party convention was not held for more than 40 years after the founding of the republic. Prior to that time various expedients to place the names of available men before the electoral college were employed—congressional caucuses, legislative resolutions, state conventions, mass meetings.

But all these were of gradual evolution. None of them was ready for use in picking the first President.

The Constitution had not provided for any nominating methods. Possibly this was partly because of a general expectation that Washington would be the first President and would continue to hold office as long as he wished.

There was hardly time, in any event, to develop uniform nominating methods between the date on which the government was formally declared in operation and the date set for the first election. Before news got around to the farthest states, by the slow means of communication of those times, that congress had declared the states must pick Presidential electors in January, 1789, it was almost time to select them if they were to function.

Political attention in the states had been monopolized by the struggle over ratifying the Constitution. No preparation had been made for the first election under it.

In five of the eleven states entitled to participate in the election (Rhode Island and North Carolina not yet having ratified the Constitution) governors did not summon the legislatures in time to provide for an election by the people. Thus, in Connecticut, New Jersey, Delaware, South Carolina and Georgia the legislatures made the selections of Presidential electors.

Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, New Hampshire and Massachusetts provided for popular election. But the vote polled in all five was very light.

New York politicians wrangled so long about the means of choosing electors that the state lost its chance to have any part in the election.

Fortunately, in this more or less unsettled condition of affairs, there was almost universal agreement upon the eminent availability of George Washington to be the first peacetime leader of the republic that had been founded as result of his wartime leadership.

A few, it is true, thought of wise old Benjamin Franklin for the honor. But he was then in his eighty-third year. Most agreed that was too old. Alexander Hamilton, on the other hand, was too young, being still under the constitutional limit of thirty-five. But he was not too young to pull wires skillfully.

The Constitution originally, before adoption, of the Twelfth amendment, provided that each Presidential elector was to cast two votes. The candidate receiving the largest number was to be declared President; the next highest, vice president.

John Adams of Massachusetts was most generally considered the proper man for vice president. Adams himself thought he had as good a right as Washington to the Presidency.

If all the electors had divided their two votes apiece between Washington and Adams, the result would have been a tie, throwing the election into congress. To avoid this, and insure the immediate victory of Washington, Hamilton discreetly and quietly passed around the suggestion that each elector cast one vote for Washington, but that a few throw their second votes to some favorite sons of their several states.

This advice was followed more extensively than Hamilton expected. When the ballots were counted it was found that Washington had been the unanimous choice of the 69 electors participating. One of the 71 electors who should have had a part in the procedure was kept at home by gout, and another was icebound.

Adams, by contrast with Washington's 69, received only 34 votes, the other 25 being widely scattered in accordance with Hamilton's little scheme.

That "black intrigue," as Adams called it, was a sorry blow to the pride of the rather vain and stolid son of Massachusetts. He did not forgive Hamilton for meddling with what he thought would have been his chance to contest with Washington on equal terms for the honor of being the first American President.

No Joke

"An apartment with four bathrooms," exclaimed Mr. Mittelbaum, as he sat reading the paper. "How can people use four bathrooms?"

"And why not?" demanded Mrs. Mittelbaum. "One for coal, another for the dogs, one to keep the fish in and the other for a bath, maybe. What's so funny about four bathrooms?"—Vancouver Province.

Shandaken, June 27.—F. M. Cleveland has moved in the house formerly occupied by C. H. Lenhart. This house has been recently overhauled, repaired and painted, making a very nice home.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Coons visited Mrs. Coons's mother, who is ill at the home of Mrs. Wheeler, Washington avenue, Kingston.

Mrs. Dutcher of Oneonta, who has been visiting Mrs. C. Scudder for a few days, has returned to her home in Oneonta.

Mid-week service in the M. E. Church on Wednesday evening at 7:30. This service will be conducted this week by C. E. Wood.

Children's Day was appropriately observed in the M. E. Church here on Sunday. The Big Indian Sunday School joined in the services. Sunday evening the Sunday School here went to Pine Hill and joined with them in the celebration.

Robert Livingston visited his daughter, Mrs. H. Townsend, Kingston, on Sunday. Mrs. Townsend recently underwent an operation. She is improving.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, June 27.—Dr. Galvin has opened an office in the Stowell drug building, formerly Vaughan's. All extend a most cordial welcome, and wish the doctor every success.

The strawberry festival and dance held in Firemen's Hall by the Junior League and Guild, of All Saints' Church, was well attended. The beautiful gowns worn by the ladies and fine music by Joe Bell's orchestra, added much to the pleasure of the affair. Over $50 was realized for the furnace fund. Many thanks to the firemen and all who in any way assisted towards the successful affair.

Rosendale Grange will serve a hot chicken supper and all that goes with it, on Wednesday evening, June 27, in the parish house. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends to attend for the benefit of the Grange.

OFFICE CAT

By Junius

Electrical Store Clerk: But, madam, what is your objection to using an electrical flat-iron?

Woman Customer: You can throw it only the length of the cord.

Now that I am old, I often think of the first girl who ever winked at me. I was sitting opposite her in a railway car, and not staring more impudently than men usually stare at a young and pretty girl.

And when she winked at me I would not have been more surprised had a rabbit shot me when I was out hunting.

Being young, I had believed that girls were always the pursuers.

Nothing came of the encounter—I ran.

"Mother," said George, as he presented an office chum who had come to spend the evening with him, "this is my friend, Mr. Specknoodle."

George's mother was rather deaf.

"I'm sorry," she said, "but I did not catch the name."

"My friend, Mr. Specknoodle," shouted George.

"I'm sorry," said the mother, "but I can't hear distinctly."

"Specknoodle!" George fairly bellowed.

"I'm afraid it's no use," said the old lady, as she shook her head. "It sounds just like 'Specknoodle' to me."

Man is born to suffer. By the time he is too old to be in love, he gets rheumatism.

Old Lady: "Tell me, dear, what is your little brother crying for?"

Girl: "'E's not cryin', mum—'e's been playin' tennis with one of mother's onions."

The supreme test of will power is to refrain from saying, "I told you so."

Evangelist: "Young man, you should brighten the corner where you are."

Railway Man: "But I work in a roundhouse."

The hit dog howls and the harder the hit the louder the howl.

Everybody besieged the new postmaster at once. One burly farmer strode up and shouted:

"Have you any letters for Mike Howe?"

"For whom?" asked the perspiring official.

"Mike Howe, I said!" yelled the man.

The postmaster took off his glasses.

"No, I have not," he said, "Neither for your cow or anybody else's."

Here's an amusing one heard in Kingston:

"Were you nervous the first time you asked your husband for money?"

"No. I was calm and COLLECTED."

If sales are slow it's the manufacturer's fault. Why don't he put a steering wheel on the washing machine?

Clerk: "Well, sir, I'm getting married next week."

Big Hardware Man: "Good. I am always glad to have my men get married. Then they don't mind staying at the store and working overtime!"

A bricklayer said to a foreman on a new job: "I'd like to work here, but I can't find a place to park my car."

The foreman replied: "I guess you won't do. This is a high class job and we want only bricklayers who have chauffeurs."

Don't borrow trouble, the interest rate's too high.

Mentioned in the Bible.

A Topeka minister, relates "Capper's Weekly", traveling on one of the few Santa Fe slow trains was reading his Bible. "Find anything in that book about the Santa Fe?" asked the conductor as he reached for the minister's ticket. "Yes," replied the minister, "it says in the very first chapter that 'The Lord made every creeping thing'."

NEW PALTZ

New Paltz, June 27.—A. P. LeFevre is building a small two-story addition on the north side of his house.

Dennis Thomas Carroll died on June 19 at about five o'clock in the morning. He had been ill for at least five years and had a nervous breakdown a few weeks ago, and and failed rapidly since then. Mr. Carroll was born in the town of New Paltz, October 28, 1864, and was the son of Michael and Bridget Carroll. He had spent nearly all of his life in the town of New Paltz and for seventeen years lived on his farm at Plutarch. Since he sold his farm he lived at Ohioville. Mr. Carroll is survived by his wife, whose maiden name was Mary P. Hammond. A daughter, Maybelle, wife of Chauncey Elliott, of New Paltz, and a son, George D. Carroll, of New Paltz. There are three grandchildren, two brothers, Charles Carroll of Philadelphia, George Carroll of Poughkeepsie, and a sister, Mary, wife of Robert Cornell of Arlington. The funeral services were held in the Ohioville Chapel Thursday at 2 p. m. The Rev. Frederic L. Bradley officiated. Burial was in the family plot in the Lloyd Cemetery.

The Rev. and Mrs. David Keeler of Clintondale were recent callers in New Paltz.

Miss Annabelle DuBois of Plattekill and Albert M. Bitler of Gardiner were married in Gardiner recently. They will make their home in Plattekill.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Quick have been entertaining Arthur Krum.

Albert Black of Libertyville was a business caller in town the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond DuBois were guests of M. E. Livingston at Clintondale the past week.

Daniel Shaw has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Deyo at Libertyville.

John Kite was a recent caller at the County Farm.

Mrs. Belle Enderly called on friends in Wallkill recently.

Sidney Smith died in New Paltz last Wednesday night after a long illness. The body was taken to Monroe for interment.

Mrs. Donald Briggs has completed her studies at the Normal and returned to her home at Verbank, Dutchess county.

Herbert E. Thomas, candidate for nomination on the Republican ticket as county treasurer was in New Paltz Monday. He is touring the county. Mr. Thomas is connected with the firm of C. E. Thomas Sons, printers of Kingston.

On Friday afternoon, June 22, about 35 girls of the Reformed Church met at the Reformed Church to form a Girls' League for service. This will be one of the many leagues throughout the Reformed Church in America in which the girls and young women of the church have leagued together for service. The program of the League covers the support and study of both Home and Foreign Missions and the field of general Christian service, which includes such avenues of opportunity as local church work, social service, patriotic work and much more. As a part of this preparation for a larger usefulness in the church, four of the young women of the church are going to spend two weeks this summer at the Home and Foreign Mission Conference at Northfield. They will live in the Reformed Church Camp, Camp Eendracht. The four who are going are Ethel Freer, Elsa Boettiger, Ruth DuBois, Florence Seward.

A group of members from New Paltz including Mrs. Anne Ward, Mrs. Ruth Beebe, Miss Charlotte E. Reeve, Mrs. Lottie Jacobs, Mrs. Marjorie Schoonmaker and Mrs. Jessie Johnston served refreshments last week, Tuesday evening, at the meeting of the Highland Chapter O. E. S., which was the last meeting for the summer.

The L. C. meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ose Monday evening.

The Methodist Episcopal and the Reformed Churches are holding a holiday school in the latter church building during the month of July. The school will open with a party at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of Friday, June 29. All children of the ages from five to fifteen are invited to be present then and during the school. The sessions will be from 9 to 12, five mornings a week, beginning Monday, July 2. There will be a closing party and demonstration of work done on Monday, July 30. The plans for the four weeks that the school will be in session are already being made. There will be Bible study in old ways and novel ways. A trip will be made via the "Imagination Railroad" to Mexico, where they will study the people, visit the missions there, and make bags to be sent to the Mexican school children. There will be singing, handwork, stunts, games, and surprises.

Miss Alice G. Quarty, New Paltz, '27, who has been teaching at Elting Corners this year, has accepted a position at Oceanside, L. I., at a substantial increase in salary. The superintendent of schools of Oceanside, Mrs. S. Taylor Johnston, visited her and inspected her work last week.

Arthur Nall, a former resident of New Paltz, visited here on his way to Brooklyn from Cornell University, where he was graduated from the College of Arts a few days ago. He has secured the position of assistant principal in the high school at Clymer, N. Y. After finishing grammar school at New Paltz, Arthur entered Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, from which he was graduated as valedictorian.

ALLIGERVILLE.

Alligerville, June 27.—The Rev. Mr. Doak spent the past two weeks in the middlewest and returned Saturday. He filled the pulpit Sunday and gave another very interesting sermon.

The Ladies' Aid held a very enjoyable picnic last week at Pompey's Cave grove on Mrs. Neff's farm. A short business meeting was held and the date set for the annual fair. This will be the evenings of August 1 and 2. Anyone desiring to contribute anything for this sale may send it to Mrs. Ollie Davis, Kyserike, or Mrs. H. E. DeWitt, Alligerville. All contributions will be gratefully received.

All are glad to know that Harold, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Maltz, who underwent an operation at the Benedictine Hospital last week, is improving.

Mrs. Miller is convalescing at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Young. She returned from the City of Kingston Hospital last Friday.

Three local boys of a few years past were in town over Sunday, Percy K. Steen, Bertram Evans and Edward DeWitt.

Joseph Evans was confined to his home last week with an attack of flu. Dr. Sherman attended him.

Dr. V. B. DeWitt, after spending a three weeks' vacation at his old home, left Friday and will begin his new duties at the M. E. Hospital, Brooklyn, during the present week. Dr. DeWitt was one of a few who received a First Lieutenant Commission in the U. S. medical service while in the university in addition to his M. D. degree.

The district school closed Friday after a very successful year. The teacher, Miss Helen Garrison, gave the pupils a pleasant social afternoon, serving ice cream and cake.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vandermark spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Philip DeGroadt.

Mrs. Anna Stillwell, widow of the late Isaac Stillwell, died at the home of her son in New Jersey last week. Mrs. Stillwell was for many years a resident of Kyserike and had many friends.

Watercress for Vitamines

Experimenters of the University of London, one of them a woman, have discovered that watercress is a remarkable rich source of the vitamine necessary for growth and also of the scurvy-preventing vitamine C. It is said its tiny leaves yield small quantities of the vitamine D as well.—Gas Logic.

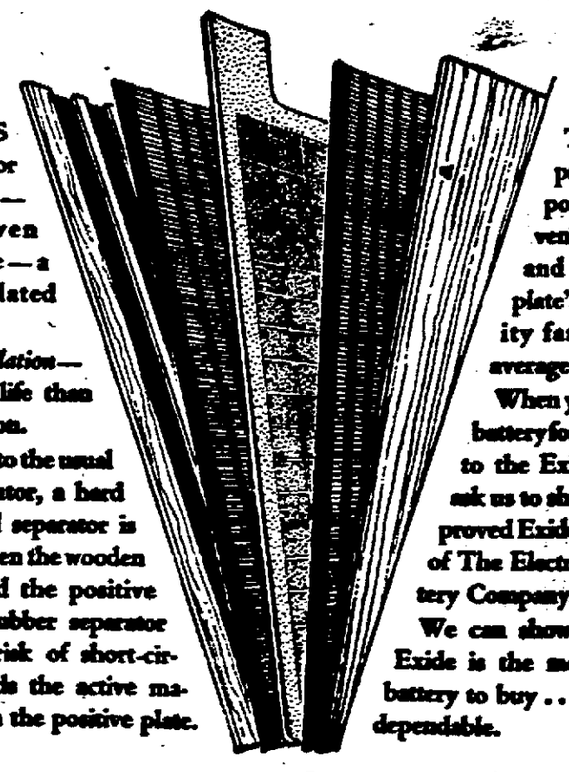
Longer Battery Life—

Double Insulation

makes battery costs amazingly low



ALWAYS famous for its long life—and now even longer life—a double-insulated Exide.

Double Insulation—gives longer life than single insulation.

In addition to the usual wooden separator, a hard rubber slotted separator is inserted between the wooden separator and the positive plate. This rubber separator reduces the risk of short-circuits and holds the active material firmly in the positive plate.

This greater protection to the positive plate prevents "shedding" and prolongs the plate's power capacity far beyond the average period.

When you need a new battery for your car, come to the Exide station and ask us to show you the improved Exide . . . a product of The Electric Storage Battery Company.

We can show you why the Exide is the most economical battery to buy . . . and the most dependable.

High Falls, June 27.—A strawberry short cake supper will be served on Tuesday evening by the Ladies' Aid Society. All are invited.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Krom and daughter from New Jersey were at the home of his brother, W. L. Krom, the past week.

Sara and Bessie Feinberg are home for the summer vacation.

A number of the Missionary Society of the Reformed Church were guests of the Hurley Missionary Society on Wednesday last and report a very pleasant time.

Miss Loretta Ostrander of Kingston was a visitor at the home of Mrs. L. W. Krom on Friday afternoon.

The High Falls public school has closed for the summer vacation.

Preston Church has rented rooms to out-of-town people for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Steen and family spent the week end with relatives in Poughkeepsie.

The Rev. A. N. Doak has returned to his pastoral work in this place after spending two weeks in Michigan.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Young of Astoria, L. I., are spending a two weeks' vacation with Mrs. E. D. Kortright.

Miss Belle Van Wagenen spent several days the past week with her brother and family.

G. H. Hopkins is spending his vacation at his home here.

SAMSONVILLE.

Samsonville, June 27.—Mrs. James McCullough and grandson have returned to their homes at Hoboken, N. J.

Mrs. James Toner and son, Emmett, and Mrs. H. J. Toner are spending their vacation at their summer home in this place.

Mrs. H. Myers, who has been ill, is better. All were pleased to see her at church on Sunday.

There will be an old time celebration at Samsonville July 4. Allen's Band of Woodstock will be there to entertain the people. It will be held rain or shine. The hot dog stand will be ready to wait on the people.

Mrs. J. A. Kelley of Kingston is visiting her brother, J. Beesmer.

Mrs. W. S. Moore and daughters and Mrs. D. C. Van Etten made a business trip to Kingston on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Beesmer of Port Ewen are receiving congratulations over the arrival of a seven-pound baby boy. Both mother and child are doing fine.

An Automatic Gas Storage Water Heater Speeds Work

Pile them into the pan, all the dishes which accumulate so quickly at meal time, and turn the hot water over them, steaming hot. How quickly the stickiness and greasiness disappear as the hot, clear stream of water passes over them! And an abundance of it for rinsing, leaves dishes sparkling clean.

A constant supply of hot water is a necessity not only for dish washing but for every household task. With an AUTOMATIC GAS STORAGE WATER HEATER hot water is always on tap for every need, flowing forth at the turn of the faucet—hot, helpful and economical.

The following plumbers or any of our salesmen will be glad to explain in detail the working of these storage water heaters:

Commencement at High School

Senior members of the Girls' Glee Club which offered a pleasing variety to the program.

Dr. Michael Awards Prizes.

The happy task of awarding the prizes always falls to the lot of Dr. Michael, superintendent of schools, and everybody is glad that it is so.

Dr. Michael, before awarding the prizes, said that as he was sitting here listening to the wonderful program and its splendid lesson, it seemed a pity that the awarding of diplomas and prizes could not have come first, so that all might have gone out with a sense of appreciation of the lesson that had been taught not only to childhood and youth, but to age, middle age and old age, to carry with them through the rest of life. To him the program had been impressive and wonderfully well presented.

Then came the awarding of prizes, which called forth unbounded enthusiasm. They were given as follows:

The Nellie A. Wood prize for best work in English for the full four years. As there were two who seemed equal in standing, two prizes were awarded in the shape of two books: "The Royal Road to Romance" to Margaret Brown and "Kiplings Poems" to Herrick Schoonmaker.

The Miroon 1926 prize of a book, to Mescal Toms with honorable mention to Ame Herzog.

The Eugene L. Resser prize for best work in modern languages for four years, to George Pratt, $5 in gold.

For excellence in Latin for four years (Dr. Michael prize, though he omitted to say so) $5 in gold, to Harold Davis.

The Prindpal Bunten prize for highest standing in mathematics, $5, to Harold Davis.

From A Friend, $5 in gold for best work in advanced mathematics only, to Olive E. Kier.

The Mrs. Edward Coykendall prize of $5 in gold for the best home-making efforts, to Margaret Happy.

Hon. William C. DeWitt Manual Arts prize, $5 in gold, for the four years' work, to Sergio Saurez, with honorable mention for Allan Coutant.

The George Burgevin prize for the best work in the Arts course, $5 in gold, to Dorothy Skoog.

The Hon. George Washburn prize of $10 in gold to a boy and a girl for the highest average in scholarship for the entire four years, to Margaret Donald and Harold Davis, who seemed to have a decided penchant for prizes and was heartily applauded for his success.

Prisma Prizes for Lower Classes.

Dr. Michael announced that the Prisma Society is made up of young women who in cooperation with their teachers do much for their loved high school in many ways, one of them being the awarding of several prizes. They gave $5 in gold to a boy and a girl in each of the three lower classes who held the highest average in class work alone, and those prizes went as follows: Freshmen, Ruth Stevens and William Lawson; Sophomores, Kathryn Heavy and Howard Thomas; Juniors, Mildred Healy and John Kinney.

Other Prizes Awarded.

Kingston Post, American Legion, had offered a medal and a button to the boy and girl who in their school life had best exemplified the attributes of honor, courage, scholarship, leadership, service, civil service, etc., and Mescal Toms and John Watts won those prizes.

The Rotary Club had given a prize of $10 to the student who in his or her junior and senior years had shown the greatest development in character, physical alertness, scholarship, and John Thompson won that $10.

The last prize offered was the Mrs. Everett Fowler (member of the board of education) prize of $10 to the girl who had shown the heartiest cooperation, the best spirit toward the school, the truest spirit of fair play and had exerted the best influence, and Anne Herzog was the happy girl.

In presenting the class to President Flemming of the board of education, Principal Van Ingen told the graduates that while they had been receiving many congratulations, none were more sincere than those of the faculty and in their new adventure of life, the faculty heartily wished them joy, happiness and service. One hundred and forty-four young people would receive their diplomas not alone because of their scholarship, but because they had learned the fundamentals of good government, good leadership, good fellowship.

President Flemming Presents Diplomas.

In his address to the Class of 1928, President Flemming also voiced his profound admiration for the program which had so impressively held the attention of all and had taught a lesson for years to come. In his few words, Dr. Michael, in Mr. Flemming's judgment, had emulated "Good Cheer" of the program and had added to, not detracted from the value of the part of the program which preceded his awarding of the prizes. Mr. Flemming felt sure that this class had throughout their commencement exercises, beginning with their Baccalaureate sermon, sensed the sanctity of human life, and he told them that what the board of education, representing the citizens of Kingston, expected of them was that, availing themselves of the opportunities and advantages offered them, they should take a step in advance of their elders who might not have had the same advantages, and prepare themselves to undertake the leadership in the world affairs of tomorrow, undertaking that vocation in their lives which would enable them to most happily and effectively serve and lead.

The program closed with the awarding of the diplomas, the pronouncing of the Benediction and a march played by the High School Orchestra.

The Jitney Players will give Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Sorcerer," on Saturday night at 9 o'clock at the Maverick, and on Sunday night, "A Trip to Scarborough," at the same hour. These performances officially open the Maverick Theatre season, and a large number of Kingston folks and others from nearby communities are expected to attend one or both of the performances.

Harvey White of the Maverick also announces that the Sunday afternoon concerts, which were to start a week ago but were postponed on account of rain, will begin for the summer. There will be a stringed trio and quintet, with Maverick musicians. This concert is held in the hall on the grounds, at 4 p. m.

For those who are not familiar with the Maverick colony, located off the West Hurley-Woodstock road, it is also announced that the Intelligensia, a restaurant in the woods, will open June 30, with an expert manager from New York city in charge for the season.

Legion Campaign For New Members

Members of Kingston Post are requested to meet at the American Legion Memorial Building tonight and Thursday night at 7:15, at which time Legionnaires will start out in squads to sign up members. Members having cars are asked to bring them for transportation.

The commander of the Post requests a large turnout of men to give the final mop-up to the membership problem. The Post believes that it should not remain idle on membership until every eligible veteran is a member of the Legion.

KINGSTON AND ULSTER AT LEGION CONVENTION

Kingston and Ulster county will be well represented at the national convention of the American Legion to be held at San Antonio, Texas, in October if funds can be raised to send the local Drum Corps to the gigantic meeting. The members of the corps are of the opinion that approximately the entire group would make the trip if the fare can be raised. Andrew J. Murphy, Jr., has been appointed chairman of a committee to raise the money. If the boys can get to Texas, Kingston will become a recognized community throughout the country, it is said, for the local drum corps stands a good chance of leading the big parade to be held at the convention. This honor will be accorded the Legion musicians representing the post which bested its membership greatest during the past year. It is estimated that Kingston now stands in third place.

The drum corps of Kingston Post will go to the state convention to be held at Schenectady on September 7. The local men will also head the parade to be held in the village of New Paltz on July 4. Excelsior Hose Band will also go to New Paltz, it is said.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

By The Associated Press.

New York—Enter Tammany's newly outfitted lion-tamer, who slaps himself a ten-pound tiger in the Central Park Zoo at much pain and rage but he was laughed while a veterinary treated him.

Saint Etienne, France—There's a big row at farmers in convention here about wine. The people insist on the wine daily in addition to pay. The wine's now great but thirst.

New York—Eleonora Sears is back from Europe, where she did mighty little walking except from the door of a hotel to the door of an automobile. "I only do those long, daring stunts when I am dared by friends," she explained.

Newark, N. J.—Annie Oakley was a sharpshooter with investments, too. An accounting of her estate filed in court shows that during her later years she never lost money. The estate of $42,448.68 was chiefly real estate and securities.

New York—What a plot right at home for a Jimmy Valentine magazine story! Miss Hetty Dingel, a stenographer for the Cosmopolitan, was locked in the manuscript vault when the door was accidentally slammed. Her faint cries were heard to the effect that the combination was in her desk. It was in shorthand. No other could read it. The police drilled a hole in the vault. The combination was passed in and Miss Dingel deciphered her way to freedom after an hour and a quarter.

Toronto—Yes, just a bit unconventional, thinks Mrs. Nathan Wood of Boston, about the modern girl. But, she told the Baptist World Alliance, "God has given us this modern girl, to whom you must look for the salvation of the world. It is these modern girls who are leading the women of the world into emancipation."

New York—Or, for some worlds to conquer sighs E Alexander Powell, globe trotter, who has just returned from a motor tour of 4,000 miles. Every oasis in the Sahara now has a filling station and a radio. That's a hyperbole, but the mayor did say that motor busses now cross an inch of the desert in a day as rapidly as once did in a fortnight and Bedouin bandits in automobiles have been known to attack a bus guarded by an armored motor car.

Chantilly, France—Except in the U. S. A. it seems to be the fashion this year for golf champions to leave a country. An American won the British open. A French girl won the British women's tournament. And now an American girl has won the French women's title.

New York—Major General Hanson E. Ely, U. S. A., is making a spotless town of Governor's Island. On a tour of inspection he noted a tin can in the rear of an officer's house. He picked it up, rang the front doorbell and handed it to the lady of the house with instructions to have it put in the garbage pail.

Stockholm—King Alfonso, polo player, and the bachelor, disengaged Primo De Rivera, are coming in the fall to hunt moose with King Gustav, tennis player.

New York—David Belasco has engaged his physician, Dr. Alexander B. Timm, for a new play. The doctor had stage experience in his student days.

What a lot of poison ivy you can acquire with a "flower fund."

Too much of the white man's burden is carried at the waistline.

No fraud in the mails is tolerated—except, of course, the special delivery stamp.

Some people whittle to kill time, and others attend disarmament conferences.

Gold filling keeps teeth from hurting, especially the teeth of the criminal code.

Don't waste too much sympathy on the man with the hoe. He may be digging fish worms.

The Bay stater who found a coin in a gizzard should be convinced there is money in chickens.

The "Golden Rule" will prove valuable not only in motor traffic, but in international relationships.

Various books are written to disclose information which might have been important if not so long delayed.

A profound mystery: Why do we never hear anything about the oldest living graduates of the female colleges?

The SANDMAN STORY

BILLIE'S ZOO VISIT

BILLIE BROWNIE was off a-visiting of the zoo creatures and the first he saw were the members of the seal family.

"Well, you are a splendid family," he said, "with your diving and swimming and performing. How you do delight people! Everyone stands around and watches you and everyone has so good a time looking at the performance you are constantly giving."

"We have a good time, too," they said, as they splashed about.

"There is one game we enjoy particularly. Our keeper throws the fish into our pool and we always catch it as he throws it.

"I Very Much Doubt It, Too," Roared Billie Brownie.

"We know when it is time for our meal, too," they went on. "Yes, we are always ready waiting for the fish pail and the keeper.

"Perhaps it would be more polite to mention the keeper first, for we couldn't have the fish pail, rather the fish from the fish pail, but the keeper, and anyway we're most extremely fond of our keeper.

"But then you know we aren't public speakers and we don't always say things as we should. We have other things to do such as swimming and splashing.

"The little ones can swim when they're six weeks old. I doubt if babies could do as much."

"I very much doubt it, too," roared Billie Brownie. "In fact, I'm sure they couldn't.

"Well, you've given me an interesting little talk," he added, "and then I've been glad to watch you perform. You're quiet now, I suppose, because you're waiting for dinner?"

"Yes, our keeper will soon be along with the fish pail," they said.

"Well, goodby, Billie Brownie, call again."

And they all splashed a most polite goodby.

Then Billie Brownie paid a visit to his friends the Zebu and family. They had always been friends of his in their quiet way and they had often told him of the days in India when they had seen so many curious sights. Those days were so very different from the ones they now knew and the people were so different, too.

Mrs. Zebu, an animal something like a cow with a hump, gave Billie Brownie a kiss and her tongue felt rough on Billie Brownie's hand, but he was pleased with the kiss, and he thanked her and said she had sweet, gentle cow ways.

Then he went to call on the Himalayan tahr.

"Hello Teddy Tahr," he said.

And Teddy Tahr, a wild goat from India, laughed and said:

"Well, Billie Brownie, so you've come to see me again. You do say all sorts of things about me, too, I've heard. Of course they're all true. But I mean I can scarcely walk around but that you'd think it was an interesting fact."

"And so I do, Teddy," said Billie Brownie. "For a Tahr isn't the sort of a creature one runs into every day. In fact, you're my only Tahr friend.

"I haven't lots and lots of them. I couldn't give a party with only one guest.

"But why, Teddy, are you resting your feet in your feed box?"

"Ah, that is so my feet are kept warm," said Teddy.

"You see, it would not be dignified for a Tahr to have a hot water bottle for his feet, such as I've heard people have. And yet he doesn't want cold feet.

"Well, maybe I've met a few more besides you," said Billie Brownie, "but I don't know the family intimately, you know. However, the one Tahr I know well I like so much that I am delighted to call upon him whenever I get the chance." And Teddy Tahr was much pleased at the compliment.

Basque Dress for Girls Is Youthful and Simple

A party dress—that's the important wardrobe item which quickens a young girl's heartbeats as she contemplates vacation days, says the Woman's Home Companion. And because of its importance considerable thought has been spent on the designing of the Priscilla basque dress. It is piquantly youthful, and while simple, simulates the sophisticated mode in its two uneven hemlines. Rose-colored organdie would be charming for this frock trimmed with a net bertha dyed the dress color and scalloped ruffle-facings of rose in a deeper tone. Of it would be equally good in taffeta if a more formal frock is desired.

On Rearing Children
from CRIB to COLLEGE
Compiled by the Editors of "CHILDREN, The Magazine for PARENTS"

A well-rounded child needs to have a zest for life. Your attitude will assist him to deal with his world unsentimentally and with wisdom.

The well-run summer camp is an ally for parents of adolescent children. The adolescent is too restless, too explorative for a summer of undirected activity at home. Thanks to social organizations, the joys of camp life are not reserved for the well-to-do. It is now possible to send a child to camp for a small sum, and many times opportunities are given him to earn money to pay his own way. But among camps, parents must choose carefully. They should ask many questions about a camp before selecting it. Is it run by an organization of standing or by an individual who is interested in the health and welfare of boys and girls? What kind of food is provided? What about the water supply and the sewage disposal?

If your milk supply is dubious or you cannot possibly afford Grade A pasturized milk, then turn to the next most natural, unaltered forms of milk we have: the dried milk powder and the evaporated canned milk. Both of these have safety and uniformity to recommend them: they travel well; they are the same everywhere.

Before antitoxin was discovered and put into general use, the word "diphtheria" sent the kind of shudder through those who heard it that "Black Death" did in the Middle ages. Antitoxin put it in the class of diseases that respond readily to treatment when treatment is administered promptly. Now, since the perfecting of toxin-antitoxin, we know that no child need have this disease.

Always buy three or four pairs of stockings just alike for each child. This is a saving in both time and money. It is easier to sort and put them away, and besides you have a pair as long as two stockings are left.

Stimulate your child's curiosity. When he asks you questions encourage his interest in and wonder at life by reasonable, satisfactory answers.

Natural Straw Hats in Vogue for Summer Wear

Most of the picture hats for the summer are made in the natural color of straw, but there also is much red, green and blue. The various kinds of straw used for them is Bangkok, Bengalese straw, a new shiny Panama called Para, a very thin Japanese straw resembling canvas and called Mikorama, and the old picot once again. All these straws are extremely supple and can be plaited, curved and tied into knots.

New Taffetas Are Brilliant

Flowered taffetas and the new flowered tussah silk are used for bouffant models. They are mostly in shades of red and green, with other colors intermixed.

Silhouettes Contradict Each Other, Much to the Delight of the Average Woman—Reviving Interest in Sleeveless Daytime Frocks—Influence of Silhouette Upon Accessories

New York—The modern woman slips easily from the modernistic sports frock, in which she spends a great part of her day, to the robe de style, in which she now greets the average party. Not content with one, she has several, if not all, of her dance frocks made along these charming lines. Whether executed in heavy moire or the sheerest tulle, her skirts are sweepingly circular, or have so much movement that one never thinks of them as inanimate, but as capable of motion in themselves.

Beach Costumes Colorful.

The very inconsistency of the fashions of the moment endear them to us. After all, how much more sensible to wear what suits the occasion, and not be bound by any rules involving either the length or breadth of the silhouette.

As summer comes on apace, interests is revived in sleeveless daytime frocks, especially of the sports genre. It is comforting to know that sleeveless jumpers and even cardigans have not disappointed us. They are reckoned as ultra smart, and usually top a frock amply supplied with sleeves. Even for beach wear, the arms are covered by either a scarf or coat, while the newest in suits is remarkable for a rather high neckline, from the front, and a decidedly decollete one as viewed from behind. Beach costumes remain exceedingly colorful, and have a tendency toward elaboration prints being as freely used for this as for other purposes.

Femininity in Gloves.

Without aiming to undervalue color, or underestimate the vogue of printed materials this season, it begins to look as though the type of woman who aims for distinction is reverting to white. One finds that even white stockings have returned, and sees fewer women completing the otherwise all-white costume by so-called nude stockings. White shoes, with or without color or leather contrasts, are also engaging admiring glances, the trend in footwear continuing toward simpler models.

It is amusing to trace the influence of silhouette on the various details that go to make up a complete costume. Gloves for instance, flare at the wrist, and, except for sports usage, are inclined to accent the widely-discussed feminine tendency. For sports the slip-on gauntlet remains the prime favorite. There is a feeling for heavier stitchings, which are often in contrasting color.

Georgette for Handkerchiefs.

An accessory that hints of great attractiveness is the large silk handkerchief, which many fashion experts place in the lead in handkerchief styles for fall. Its reappearance is due partly to the success of the large chiffon mouchoir, adapted for evening, and to the decorative silk handkerchief, which is used for everything under the sun except as a handkerchief.

While several approve pastel and plain silks, rather heavily monogrammed in contrasting color, there is also a feeling for more or less indefinite printed handkerchiefs. Georgette handkerchiefs in regulation size, and also in plain colors, with the corner monogram inclined to ample proportions, are also given as the successor of the heretofore popular chiffon or crepe de chine but a linen handkerchief should always be carried with a linen gown, and often with a silk one.

Velvet and Velveteen Popular.

Even the parasol, another gesture toward feminism and toward more luxurious type of dressing, is for also the organdie and dainty cotton as well as the crisp linen of yore, all of which proves that summer has claimed us for its own.

When bedecked in velveteen, as sometimes our mood, it seems that we are determined to carry on the practice of ignoring the temperature in planning costumes. Smart style persist in including both velveteen and velvet in their midsummer offerings, and that women are not averse to this practice is readily seen. Bright blue seems an exceptionally popular color for the velvet coat or jacket.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

"LET THE OLD CAT DIE"

ALL of us who have ever been children—and most of us have—know what it means to "let the old cat die." But for fear that some may have forgotten it may be stated that it consists of letting the swing in which you have been disporting yourself come to standstill of itself before you jump out of it. After the words "let the old cat die" have been uttered it is considered bad luck to quicken the motion of the swing again. This superstition has its origin in the fact that swinging was anciently a magical rite. Among many savage and half-civilized peoples it is a magical rite today and as a survival it enters into various festivals in different parts of Europe which festivals are themselves survivals from ancient heathen observances. Just what the ancient signification of swinging as a rite was is a question which has puzzled even Professor Frazer who says:

"The custom of swinging has been practiced as a religious or rather magical rite in various parts of the world, but it does not seem possible to explain all the instances of it in the same way."

Among some uncivilized peoples it would appear to be in the nature of homeopathic magic to make the crops grow high as it is among the Letts of what was once Russia. In other instances, however, the rite was practiced for the purpose of driving evil spirits out of the air as it evidently was in the ancient Athenian swinging festival. Again in several of the European folk-festivals of today the swinging is evidently connected with sun-worship. In some parts of southern Europe the swinging festival takes place at the winter solstice, which suggests to Professor Frazer that it may have originally been a rite intended by sympathetic magic to assist the sun in rising again to the highest point in the heavens. But in some parts of northern Europe the swinging takes place at the summer solstice and from here we may have inherited the idea that it is unlucky to interfere with "letting the old cat die." The sun was swung to its highest point in the heavens; it now gradually swings again back to its lowest. So the swing gradually ceases all upward movement. To set it swinging again after the magic formula has been uttered would be going against the course of nature—which would be unlucky.

Important Railroad Link

On May 10, 1869, the Union and Central Pacific railroads were united at Promontory point, Utah. This established the first rail line from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Previous to that time the trip was made by wagon or else around the cape.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE "MILK OF HUMAN KINDNESS"

THIS expression may be rather oratorical in flavor, yet it is frequently met in modern writing and speech. It is the calming leavening, beneficent influence that is real human kindheartedness that is referred to as the "milk of human kindness."

The expression had its origin in that mine of human truth and beautiful diction that comprises the work of Shakespeare. It is in Act I, scene V of "Macbeth" that we find its first recorded use. Lady Macbeth is reading a letter from her husband in which he tells her of the prognostications of the witches and their good import, that he would be king.

Lady Macbeth, whose inciting of her husband led to the bloody trail of killings which winds through the play, is not prepared to take the promises of the witches seriously because of what she thinks of her husband's inability to murder his way to the throne, that being the only way in which his ambition to be king can be realized. She says:

". . . yet do I fear thy nature:
It is too full o' the milk of human kindness
To catch the nearest way."

Although it started in this way, as a reproach for what Macbeth's lady considered weakness, the expression has survived in modern language to describe goodness and kindness.

Colloquial

"Yankee dime" is a slang term used in some sections of the United States, particularly the South, to denote a kiss, just as "Dutch quarter" is used to mean a hug. In some sections "Quaker nickel" is employed in the same sense as "Yankee Dime."

CITY TREASURER'S OFFICE
Special Assessment.

Notice is hereby given that I have received the warrant for collection of the special assessment of 75 per cent of the expense incurred in the construction of a Sanitary Sewer in Lucas Avenue, beginning at the westerly line of the City of Kingston and extending through the said Lucas Avenue for a distance of two thousand thirty-five (2035) ft. to a connection with the existing sewer in said Lucas Avenue.

The Same has been left with me for collection at my office in the Central Fire Station, second floor, East O'Reilly Street, in said City; that for thirty days from the date of this notice the said assessment may be paid without additional fees or charges, and that for the twenty succeeding days two per centum additional will be collected.

Democrats Miss William J. Bryan

Death of Silver Tongued Orator Removes His Name from Roll of Democratic National Convention for First Time in 32 Years.

Houston, June 27 (AP).—A name that has swayed every Democratic national convention for 36 years is missing from the rolls as the party convenes here to choose its 1928 presidential nominee.

The silver-tongued oratory of William Jennings Bryan, whose energy, courage and idealism influenced national party gatherings from 1896 to 1924, has been stilled by death.

Thrice he was the Democratic choice for president, and although thrice turned back he remained a power in its councils. Even at Madison Square Garden, in the memorable deadlock of 1924, he was a major factor as head of Florida's delegation and a leader of William G. McAdoo's supporters. In the compromise that resulted in nomination of John W. Davis for president, Bryan won for his brother, Charles W. Bryan, governor of Nebraska, the nomination for vice president.

In 1892, a few months after he was elected to congress from Nebraska, Bryan won national attention with his tariff speeches, but it was in 1896, when he went to the Democratic national convention prepared to lead the free silver wing of the party, that he laid the foundations for a political career which made him a popular idol.

Speech Made Him Famous.

Selected to support the silver plank before the convention, "the boy orator of the Platte" delivered his famous speech which concluded: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns; you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold."

He threw the convention, groping for a presidential nominee, into an uproar. In a barrage of shouting and wild applause, delegation after delegation stampeded to the Bryan standard. The champion of free silver coinage had won the nomination and the leadership of his party.

In the strenuous campaign his energy never lagged. He won a following even outside his own party, but he also frightened from his banner many conservative Democrats, and he lost to McKinley.

In 1924, at the last national convention he was to attend, his was still a silver tongue that won a hearing amid the bedlam, and his name was one that brought reechoing cheers.

This time even the Commoner's brother, Charles, Democratic vice-presidential candidate four years ago and present nominee of his party for the governorship of Nebraska, may be absent from the Democratic gathering. If he comes here he says he plans no active part in the deliberations.

Lacquered Silver

The bureau of standards says that the lacquer on sterling silver, when it is wearing off, should be removed by a solvent, such as a lacquer thinner or butyl acetate. If the objects are discolored, they should be cleaned with a silver cleaner and washed and dried carefully, avoiding finger marks on the surface. The silver may then be relacquered with a clear lacquer for silverware sold by most lacquer manufacturers. After lacquering the objects should be dried at 100 to 120 degrees Fahrenheit for 30-45 minutes. Time and money might be saved by taking the articles to an electroplating plant or to a jeweler.

Why Snakes Are Valuable

Do many people realize what it means to kill a harmless snake? And how many know the actual loss in money value which the nation suffers when misguided and thoughtless persons indulge their love of killing by disguising it as a falsely superstitious "hatred" of snakes? In the rich farmlands of the western United States, says Nature Magazine, the millions of gophers, field mice and rats would shortly increase to billions which would swarm over every bit of edible material and would carry germs of disease wherever they went, were it not for their strong natural enemies, which keep their numbers somewhat in check.

Old Rumanian Custom

Until a few years ago it was the custom in Rumania to cut a hole in the ice of a stream and into this to cast a cross. Then men dived for this and the individual so fortunate as to find it was permitted to carry it for three days and to collect a considerable amount of money.

How the most Beautiful Clothes in the World are kept New-Looking twice as long with Lux

Amazing experience of Movie Studios · · Famous Dressmakers Department Store Buyers · · New York Musical Shows · · ·

Here is experience that will help you to keep that beautiful new look in all your lovely things—

NO matter how much or how little you pay for modern clothes, they are sheer! They lose their new look so quickly; wear out so soon! But there is a way to keep them enchantingly new—much longer!

Read these facts—results of tested experience!

Dollars and Cents Test

The great MOTION PICTURE STUDIOS of Hollywood, the glittering New York MUSICAL SHOWS, tried out different soaps for cleansing modern fabrics and clothes.

And discovered that, when cleansed safely in LUX, costumes and stockings stay like new more than twice as long!

So now every great movie studio, every musical show in New York, uses Lux—to get DOUBLE WEAR!

Experts Use Lux

And additional groups of experts—recognized as final authorities on fabrics—confirm these wonderful results!

Department store buyers—92 out of every 100 women buyers interviewed in 112 leading stores—insist on Lux for their own precious things.

Exclusive Dressmakers—In New York's famous FASHION establishments, where the beautiful women of society buy wonderful clothes—ONLY LUX is used for cleansing delicate lingerie and stockings worn by mannequins. Lux keeps sheer things fresh—like new—so much longer!

$300,000 WORTH OF COSTUMES USED IN "DON JUAN," STARRING JOHN BARRYMORE—

a Warner Bros. super-film. "Everything in our studio which is washable at all is washed in Lux," says J. L. Warner, vice-president of Warner Bros. "Actual tests made us adopt the rule, 'use only Lux'".

Now every important studio in Hollywood uses Lux to save millions of dollars in wardrobe expenses.

LIVING MODELS DISPLAY GORGEOUS GOWNS!

The above picture gives a glimpse "behind the scenes" in the fashionable salon of Frances Clyne, exclusive dressmaker.

In New York's great establishments of dress, the lovely underthings and hosiery worn by the models must always look new!

Only Lux will keep them beautifully fresh and lovely, say New York's most famous dressmakers—Hickson, Hattie Carnegie, Tappé, Kurzman, Bergdorf-Goodman, Stein and Blaine, Milgrim, Jay-Thorpe, Frances Clyne, Bruck-Weiss.

THIS ZIEGFELD SHOW USES LUX: IN "ROSALIE," brilliant Broadway success featuring the adorable Marilyn Miller (center), the sheer, long stockings worn by stars and choruses are kept like new with Lux. Every other musical show in New York also uses Lux to double the life of stockings. As the Shubert General Manager enthusiastically puts it—"We would use Lux if it cost $1.00 a box. Lux cuts stocking bills in half."

DEPARTMENT STORE BUYERS SELECT SMART CLOTHES:

Three buyers in the New York showroom of Jesse Woolf and Co., buying summer frocks for their stores. These women buyers are sent frequently to Paris and New York to purchase fashion apparel. They are experts in clothes!

Now, for the first time, the buyers in 112 leading stores in cities from Boston to Los Angeles, have told their own secrets of clothes care. For their own precious things, 92 out of every 100 interviewed insist on safe Lux cleansing.

Women everywhere use Lux! In 8 out of 10 representative homes in cities from coast to coast, investigations show, Lux is used. To keep modern clothes like new so much longer!

LUX IS SO PURE that the famous New York Maternity Center uses Lux in cleansing all baby things, so that there can be no risk of irritating the baby's tender skin.

This gives vivid proof of the purity of Lux and the great care with which it is made. For organizations such as the Maternity Center have submitted Lux to most rigid analysis and tests before choosing it officially. No wonder Lux never harms delicate colors or fine fabrics.

Robby almost laughed out loud yesterday when the Dodgers beat the Braves twice at Boston and hurdled from fifth place to third, leaping over the Chicago Cubs and Cincinnati Reds enroute. Bill Clark had no trouble stopping the Braves in the first game, 5 to 1. Jake Flowers's single in the ninth scored the tying and winning runs in the Robins' 6 to 5 victory in the nightcap. It took five Brooklyn pitchers to win this one, Dazzy Vance being the eventual victor. Flowers got six hits and drove in five runs during the day.

The New York Giants consolidated their position in second place with their third straight verdict over the Phils, 7 to 6. The Giants made 18 hits to add to the 32 they collected in yesterday's double-header. Don Hurst, of the Phils, hit his 10th homer.

The Cubs finished all square in a twin bill at Chicago with the Corsairs of Pittsburgh. Burleigh Grimes put the Pirates one up with a four-hit shut-out in the first contest, 1 to 0. Miljus, Burwell and Dawson, however, could not make it two in a row, the Pirates losing, 7 to 3, in the second game.

Barnes, Senators' outfielders, drove out two home runs that accounted for all of Washingtons' runs in a 4 to 1 victory over the faltering Philadelphia Athletics, who dropped more ground to the barnstorming Yankees in the American League race. Milt Gaston gave the tribe of Mackmen only three hits. It was the Senators' fourth victory of the six-game series and their 18th in their last 22 games.

That rising young star from St. Mary's College, Larry Bettencourt, crashed out a home run with the bases filled and the Browns evened the series with the Cleveland Indians, 6 to 3. Alvin Crowder recorded his sixth straight win and the Browns brought their home stand to a close with the balance sheet showing 18 victories and 9 defeats.

Harry Heilmann, American League batting champion of 1927, was benched as the Detroit lineup suffered a drastic shakeup but the Tigers dropped another game to the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 2, Grady Adkins giving up only three safe hits.

Cleaned Up Yellow Fever

The Rockefeller foundation in 1916 dispatched a commission to Guayaquil to confer with local and national officials relative to active measures against the yellow fever plague. A proposal was made in 1918. This was accepted later by the Ecudorian officials and the propaganda was started shortly thereafter. The story has been told by scientists that a bucket and tank brigade was started and it was only a short time when they cleaned up and drained the stagnant pools under the direction of General Gorgas.

Joe McCarthy Greatest Man in Baseball Game

According to Ollie O'Mara, former Detroit shortstop, Joe McCarthy is the greatest man in baseball.

There are a good many others who believe the same thing and their number will be increased to legion if the Cubs make good their promise and win the pennant. They have the reserve strength this year to withstand the final grind, and there is no other club in the league with as good pitchers and as many of them.

When a club isn't going, the fans are quick to make snap suggestions: "Why don't he put in this guy?" "Why don't he do this?"

The fans seem to think that a manager works only a couple of hours a day and takes the job pretty indifferently. That's not so—at least not about Joe McCarthy.

He lives baseball every minute. Last year when the club cracked, he was up night after night in conference with Jimmy Barbee trying to figure some way to shake the club out of its slump. The fans knew numerous easy ways to settle the whole trouble, but McCarthy, trained and experienced as he is, sitting up night after night with another proved expert, didn't find it easy.

This year he shouldn't have that slump to try to stop, but there will be other problems, and one thing is certain, Joe McCarthy will give them plenty of careful attention, so don't worry.

Indians Pay $5,000 to Retain Edward Montague

By planking $5,000 on the counter, the Cleveland Baseball club made its decision to retain Edward Montague, third sacker purchased provisionally from New Haven last winter.

Under the agreement with the Eastern league club, the Indians had until May 15 to pay the additional money for the promising infielder. Montague, who was to go back to New Haven if the Indians decided not to buy, will be farmed out for experience for the rest of the season.

Remarkable Fellow

Teacher asked the children individually to name the prominent person they would most like to see.

Some said the king, others Charlie Chaplin, and many of them mentioned famous athletes.

After a time, one small boy shouted, "Please, miss, I'd rather see my father's boss."

"Well," replied the teacher, "I should hardly think one would class him as a prominent man; but let us hear why you would like to see him."

"Because," was the answer, "I've heard father say that his boss has got 200 hands."—Montreal Star.

Polish Players in Baseball

POLAND, a magazine published in the United States for Polish-Americans, devotes six pages of its current issue to "Poland's Contribution to American Baseball." The article lists nine players of Polish descent who are in the major leagues, gives a number starring in the minors and a still larger number prominent in college baseball.

Most illustrious of all the Polish players, according to the author, is Stanley Coveleskie, who, because of his work in two world series, is rated above all other players of Polish descent.

There were five Coveleskies who played ball. Harry Coveleskie was for a few years the star of the Detroit pitching staff. He never was as good as Stanley and the other three brothers never reached the major leagues, writes H. G. Salsinger in the Detroit News.

We learn that the Philadelphia Athletics have three stars who are Polish. They are John Bolinski, Jack Picus and Albert Szymanski. Strangely enough these three are the only Polish players in the major leagues not appearing under their family names. Jack Picus is known to baseball as Jack Quinn and is generally regarded as being an Irishman. John Bolinski is Joe Boley to baseball, while Albert Szymanski is known as Al Simmons.

Discussing the Pole in American sports, we quote from the article:

"The outstanding Star in our present scheme of things athletic is the Pole, and the ardor and fire that he puts into a game of football, a game of baseball or a game of basket ball are all a recrudescence of the old fighting spirit that animated the heroic Polish warriors of old.

Stanley Coveleskie.

"The indomitable fighting spirit of Kosciusko and his valorous followers in their ill-starred struggle for freedom, the courage and chivalry of King John Sobieski and his army who risked a far-flung, hazardous expedition to defend Christian Vienna from the hordes of infidel Turks, is revitalized today in American sports arenas. The volatile, virile Polish people, whose ideal of freedom was kept alive in the burning, epic lines of Mickiewicz, and the stirring romanticism of Sienkiewicz, are finding new channels of self-expression after the repression of a century and a half."

DIAMOND PICK-UPS

Roland Douthit, brother of Taylor Douthit, has joined the St. Louis Cards. He is a third baseman.

Pitcher Frank Bennett, late of the Boston Red Sox, is now receiving his mail in care of the Pittsfield club.

• • •

S. F. Hampton of St. Louis was named alternate junior manager of baseball for 1929 at Washington and Lee university.

• • •

Cy Young not only had a terrific fast ball but one that had a crazy hop to it. No wonder he was one of baseball's greatest pitchers.

• • •

Homer Blankenship, brother of Ted, who was sent on option to Dallas by the Sox, is turning in some fine games down in the Texas league.

• • •

Fox is only nineteen, but this is his third year with Mack's Old Men's club. Jack Quinn, who heaves them to Fox, is old enough to be his grandpa.

Charley Hall, coach of the Minneapolis baseball club, boasts of four no-hit games and a winning streak of 16 games during the 25 years he has been associated with professional baseball.

Denying that a fist fight had taken place in the clubhouse at St. Louis, before the team started on its present trip, Manager McKechnie of the Cardinals offered to pay $100 to anyone who could prove the rumor.

• • •

Eddie Connolly, young catcher, owned by the Boston Americans, now with Pittsfield, has returned to the game after a spike injury. In his incapacity, Boston sent a receiver by the name of Absjornson to the club to fill in.

• • •

Bill Whitman, peppy Bridgeport leader, has copied a leaf out of John McGraw's book of tactics by carrying a physical culture and dietitic expert around the loop with the Bears. Professor Parker is the man who keeps the players' muscles in shape.

Fred Frankhouse, of the St. Louis Cardinals, seems to be an exploded phenom. When he came up from Texas to join the Cardinals last September and won five straight games from as many different clubs, he was hailed as a wonder, but has been unable to get under way this year.

When the Yanks signed up Vic Hanson, former Syracuse university star, Hanson requested Miller Huggins to give his buddy, Bill Eisemann a trial. Huggins consented. Now Eisemann is playing with Hartford in Class A ball, while his chum was shunted by Waterbury to Syracuse of the N. Y. P. league.

Providence looks to have the strongest outfield in the Eastern circuit, with Dave Harris, Jimmy Clarke and Red Barren as mainstays, and young Jimmy Munroe in reserve. The first three are ten-second men. The quartet can hit in the select circle, field with the best of 'em, and act on the paths well enough to please any manager.

Killed by Peashooter

"Shot to death with a peashooter," was the verdict of the coroner's jury investigating the demise of Mrs. Jessie Archer in London, England. It was found that she ruptured the aorta when the vegetable, shot from a boy's artillery, hit her in the face.

Feeling of Resentment Stars Have for Umpires

The feeling of resentment that ball players have toward umpires is natural.

We all have a keen dislike for authority, and the umpire holds absolute authority on the ball field, writes H. G. Salsinger in the Detroit News.

There have been many excellent umpires who were decent and fair at all times, but regardless of this, no ball player ever developed the least affection for any of them.

As long as umpires carry the authority that is invested in them, the ball player will bear his resentment. And, if that authority is ever diminished to any extent, it will mean the end of baseball.

One reason the sport flourished was that B. B. Johnson made the umpire supreme on the field of play and first invested him with the authority he now carries.

Plant Generates Gas

The plant known as dittany generates gas which can be lighted. It is covered with glands that secrete a volatile oil, which in hot weather evaporates, making the air about the plant inflammable. It grows in southern Europe and central Asia.

Miller's Boxers Well Booked

Walk Miller intends to keep his stable of scrappers busy during the summer months. He has outstanding prospects for honors in their divisions slated for bouts in various cities throughout the country and hopes to have several new champions in his camp by the fall. Several stellar prospects, including Manuel Quintero, contender for the lightweight crown, are now training at the Eddyville camp for future bouts.

The following is the schedule Miller has mapped out for his fighters:

Tommy Jones, southern lightweight, is matched to box Baby Joe Gans at Cleveland, Ohio, June 28. Ray Miller was originally slated to meet Jones but cancelled the match, claiming sickness prevented his going through with it.

Bob Lawson has been matched to box Carl Carter at Galveston, Texas, for the 30th of June under the auspices of the Galveston Business Men's Athletic Club.

Manuel Quintero, after several postponements, has been signed to meet Louis Kid Kaplan at New Haven, Conn., July 2. An attack of the flu was the reason given by Kaplan for moving the date up to the present one. Quintero is a very much sought fighter these days. Tex Rickard is now trying to get Sammy Mandell for him in an overweight match for an August date. Chicago and Boston also want him.

Tommy White, holder of the welterweight and middleweight titles of Mexico, was scheduled to box Frankie Schoell of Buffalo on June 29 at Williamsport, Pa., but was notified Schoell would be unable to appear at that time and Dosy Shimar was substituted.

Tony Leto, former bantamweight champion of the south, has outgrown that division and will devote his efforts in the future to the featherweights. He is appearing on the semi of the Quintero-Kaplan card at New Haven, July 2.

Bob Lawson is boxing Chas Anderson at Chattanooga, Tenn., July 2.

Pinky Urquide, the Yacqui flyweight who has been making a clean sweep of all the little fellows down around El Paso, Texas, will soon be seen around New York. Urquide is one of the hardest hitters that class has seen for many years and overtures have been made to Izzy Schwartz and Frankie Genaro to meet him down there but neither were signed.

W. L. Stribling is matched to box Tom Roper at Macon, Ga., July 4, ten rounds which will possibly be his last appearance in the south for some time. The Striblings expect to come north and spend most of the summer up this way.

Y'S MEN VICTORS IN GAME WITH BURROUGHS TEAM

In a six-inning baseball game at the Fair Grounds Tuesday afternoon the Burroughs Adding Machine Company representatives of Albany dropped their first game of the year. The victors were the Y's Men of Kingston, who overwhelmed the Albanians 9-1. The local players got to Chamberlain with ease. Klas and Morrissey did the best work with the willow, collecting three hits apiece. "Pop" Hinds came through with a two bagger in the first inning, which brought in two runs for the Y's Men. Hendrickson twirled for the local team for five innings and Flemmings took the mound in the last.

Following the game the teams and their rooters went to the Y's Men's camp at Glenerie, where a bounteous supper was served. Following the supper dancing was enjoyed for which music was furnished by Zucca's orchestra.

GODFREY-RISKO BOUT TONIGHT AT EBBETS FIELD

New York, June 27 (AP).—If Signor Humbert Fugazy's prayer for a little fair weather is answered, George Godfrey and Johnny Risko will put on their much postponed ten-round battle at Ebbets Field tonight.

During the various postponements of the match the odds have shifted from 7 to 5 on Godfrey until it appears the men will enter the ring at about even money. Godfrey will have every physical advantage over his pudgy opponent but Risko figures to outspeed and outpunch the negro.

Poughkeepsie Bouts June 3

The boxing show originally scheduled to be staged at Grindle Park, Poughkeepsie, on Thursday, June 28, has been postponed until Tuesday, July 3, when a stellar collection of fistic encounters is expected to interest a large number of fans, including many Kingstonians.

Leo Smith and Eddie Kelly, both of Kingston, are now in charge of the matchmaking for the Poughkeepsie Exhibition Club. It is anticipated that their knowledge of picking well balanced fighters will make the cards at Grindle Park real big-time affairs. The park is in Arlington, a short distance from the city of Poughkeepsie proper. Transportation to the battle grounds from Poughkeepsie may be had on the trolley cars, which Pass Grindle Park.

The program as it stands now is somewhat different from the one originally planned. Joe Myers of Kingston and several other boxers will not be able to box because of going to camp with the National Guard. However, the departure of the soldiers for the summer camping period did not effect the stellar attractions and men of good calibre have been procured to take the places of the scrappers who will go to camp.

Kelly and Smith now have the following card to present to boxing fans:

Main 8-round event, Frankie Koschina vs. Eddie "Ghost" Clarke of New York.

Semi-final 6-rounder, Joe Colletti of Poughkeepsie vs. Tommy Abobo, Philippine scrapper, who turned in several clever performances in the local armory.

Kid Rash of the 369th Infantry and recent conqueror of Roy Van Buren, vs. Irving Peck of Newburgh, 6 rounds.

Johnny Carpino, Kingston, vs. Dave Brown of Yonkers, 6 rounds.

Al Ferone of Beacon vs. Joe Thisley of Peekskill, 4 rounds.

Charles Fisher of this city vs. Bill Morangothy of New York city, 4 rounds.

Arrangements are being made to have Murphy's news store on the Strand, Leotta's barber shop on Railroad avenue and S. Cohen's Sons handle tickets for the scraps. Negotiations are also in the making to have the ferries accommodate the fans by adjusting their schedules.

Dances at Shokan.

The summer dances at Wincheli's hall, Shokan, under the direction of Paul Zucca, will begin Tuesday, July 3.

The hall has been enlarged and redecorated and many visitors from Kingston will no doubt be surprised at its up-to-date attractiveness. These dances, held every Tuesday night, are very popular with the summer boarders, and many from Kingston, Phoenicia and Stone Ridge attend. The orchestra this year will consist of Paul Zucca, J. Paul Purcell, Allie Clough and Steve Griffing.

A Roof Fire.

Tuesday afternoon men were busy cleaning out the chimneys on the house of Frank A. Waters, 60 Highland avenue. About 6:20 o'clock that evening the roof was discovered on fire and the fire department responded to a still alarm. A hole was burned in the roof before the fire was brought under control with the use of chemicals.

Fear Six Men in Balloon Died

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 27 (AP).—Fear that six men, who drifted away in the balloon part of the Italia after its crash on the polar ice cap, were dead prevailed today when it was learned that the airship had caught fire.

Of sixteen men who left aboard the dirigible for the North Pole on May 25 only six were known to be alive today. One man was killed in the crash and three others have been missing since they started afoot for land.

General Umberto Nobile said that soon after the dirigible crashed on May 25 the balloon part with six men aboard drifted to the east and a small column of smoke was seen rising from it after it had gone 10 kilometers (about six miles). Nothing has been heard of the six men.

Vinzenzo Pomella, motor attendant, was in the stern gondola when the Italia crashed. The gondola was ripped off in striking the ice, crushing Pomella. During the ensuing commotion he died.

Among the debris on the ice they found all the instruments. Later the body of Pomella was discovered and buried in the ice.

In the meantime the balloon part of the Italia was drifting to the east, having been freed of the weight of the gondolas and part of the bracings. When it had gone about 10 kilometers a small column of smoke was seen rising from it. Nobile thought that either a gasoline or an oil tank had caught fire.

High Humidity In Houston

Houston, June 27 (AP).—With the temperature in the middle 80's, Democracy's national conclave began its second day with the prospect of a hot time as far as the weather was concerned.

High humidity, which was recorded at 99 at 7 o'clock as the delegates began stirring for the day's proceedings, made the temperature seem even hotter than it actually was and coaxed perspiration. A year ago humidity at the same time was only 65.

The mercury reached its highest point in the last 24 hours at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon when 91 was recorded.

Little relief was in prospect.

West Camp's Worst Storm.

The worst storm of the season at West Camp, town of Saugerties, occurred Monday night when rain fell as in a deluge, lightning threatened and the wind did considerable damage to orchards in the vicinity. On the farm of Supervisor John C. Shults apple trees were torn up by the roots and a number of pines and maples near his home were blown down by the wind.

Shatter Balustrade.

Louvain, Belgium, June 27 (AP).—Despite the presence of four policemen, 300 Louvain students and civilians, demonstrating in favor of the American architect, Whitney Warren, invaded the new library works today and shattered to pieces the pillars of a balustrade which Rector Ladeuze desired to have erected instead of the architects.

Ohio Will Switch to Smith.

Houston, June 27 (AP).—The Ohio delegation voted overwhelmingly in caucus today to authorize its chairman to switch practically its entire 48 votes from former Senator Atlee Pomerene to Governor Alfred E. Smith "at any time from the beginning of the first ballot."

Courtney Turns Back.

Lisbon, Portugal, June 27 (AP).—A wireless message today said that Captain Frank T. Courtney, who hopped off from Lisbon this morning for the Azores enroute to the United States, was returning. An accident to the water tube of his seaplane forced him to turn back.

Collett and Van Wie Win.

Buffalo, June 27 (AP).—Displaying fine form on the fairways and greens, Miss Glenna Collett, former national champion, and Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago star, won second round matches in the eighth annual women's invitation golf tournament at the Buffalo Country Club today.

Search Waters For Child.

Binghamton, June 27 (AP).—Posses today are searching the waters of Nanticoke creek for the body of Laura May Maltby, seven years old, of Millerton, Pa., who fell into the stream, swollen by recent rains, as she was attempting to cross it on a log. Companions tried to rescue her.

Oklahoma's First For Reed.

Houston, June 27 (AP).—The Oklahoma delegation today decided to cast its first ballot for Senator Reed, of Missouri.

Europe's Art Objects Really Second Rate?

The treasury of Europe, that vast litter of the work of their grandfathers, which the posters preach, is as miscellaneous and unequal as a jackdaw's swag in the hollow tree, and no one knows the good from the bad, declares William Boltho in Vanity Fair.

"All artistic criticism," declares this iconoclast, "is as dead in Europe as was scientific in the Middle ages. The same Frenchman who insists that you do the dusty journey to wind-swept Versailles to worship the monstrous palace, where even the impenetrable stolidity of an architect who could make over three hundred yards of bays in exact repetition cannot disguise the ill-judged megalomania of the monarch who insisted that his father's hunting box should be built into the center of the largest palace in the world, will rush you with a sickly smile past the magnificent and serene Eiffel tower.

"The grand staircase of the Chateau of Blois is stuck on and superfluous; the greatest German cathedral, Cologne, is nakedly, appallingly out of scale, too short for its height, and instead of that lovely Gothic sensation of soaring to the heavens, gives the spectator a dull pain between the eyes; detailed mention of all instances that clutter my memory would not exhaust the case." Whether good or bad, he concludes, anything built before 1840 is reverenced as being artistic.

Captives Well Treated.

Mexico City, June 27 (AP).—Dispatches from Guadalajara today said that W. M. Mitchell and John F. Hooper, American mining men who were recently kidnapped and are being held for ransom, had sent a letter to their relatives and friends saying they were being well treated by their captors.

Missionary Societies to Meet.

The Missionary Societies of St. James Church will meet with Mrs. W. S. Hogan, 150 Wall street, on Friday, June 29, at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. Down will have charge of the devotions and Mrs. Shafer will give Chapters five and six in the Foreign Text Book. The thank offering will be taken.

Strawberry Festival Tonight.

A strawberry festival will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in Epworth Hall by the Winners Class of the Clinton Avenue M. E. Church. Everybody welcome.

Becker Appeal In County Court

An appeal was argued Monday afternoon before County Judge Joseph M. Fowler in the matter of The People vs. Harold Becker convicted of cruelty to animals. Becker, who comes from Pattersville, was convicted of beating a horse on Fish Court. He was placed under arrest on complaint of L. E. Dunne. In city court Judge Shufeldt imposed a fine of $25 and 30 days in the county jail on a plea of guilty. It was alleged that Becker had beaten a horse with a piece of heavy timber, knocking the animal down. He claimed the horse was balky and of a mean disposition and that he had only taken such means as were necessary to move the animal.

F. W. Brooks, who appeared for appellant, asked that the sentence of the city court be reduced. The matter was held open by Judge Fowler in order to give him an opportunity to investigate the reputation of Becker.

District Attorney Traver opposed a reduction of sentence on the grounds that the act was one of the most brutal and deliberate which has taken place in the city in many years. At the time of the occurrence it attracted the attention of many people in the vicinity and among employes of the factories in that locality. He argued that in view of the circumstances the sentence imposed by the court was a just one and asked that it be confirmed by the county court. Becker was released from jail on bail following the filing of the appeal shortly after the happening.

Pastor Called On to Have Business Mind?

"The church is caught in the occidental, and more particularly American, habit of gauging success by the spectacular. A successful church, like a successful furniture shop, is the one which has the biggest establishment, offers the biggest assortment of wares, and affords the biggest income. . . . A considerable part of my work as a minister is not so different from that of the executive charged with the responsibility of getting new customers into a furniture shop," writes a minister in Harper's. "I must 'sell' my institution just as surely and skillfully as the man hired by the local chamber of commerce 'sells' his organization. The difference is that he was hired for that express purpose, and I, tradition says, was hired, or should have been, for something else."

Use of Hooks

Every home owner should invest in a good assortment of hooks. To hook back doors while open is a convenience, as nothing has to be hunted up to hold the door from banging shut when it is wanted open. Hook doors on the inside. Hook covers on feed boxes instead of having weights on them. Hook basement storm windows that have to be opened occasionally. Hook gates, tool boxes and children's playhouse doors. These doors should never be hooked tightly or the children will sometime lock themselves in. If a long staple is used and a good deal of it left on top the wood, the hook will hold the door and yet give it play so they can work it open from the inside.—Successful Farming Magazine.

Wide Awake

It was after dusk and yet the two young people sitting close together in the park made no attempt to depart.

Presently a keeper came in sight, going his rounds before closing the gates.

"Sorry to disturb ye," he said to the idlers, "but it's too late for ye to be sitting here."

The youth was apologetic.

"I didn't realize it was so late," he murmured. "We are going to be married next year."

"Sure, now," returned the park keeper, "do you think I'm fool enough to suppose you was married last year"—Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The Cruelest Lies

The cruelest lies are often told in silence. A man may have sat in a room for hours and not opened his mouth, and yet come out of that room a disloyal friend or a vile calumniator. And how many loves have perished because, from pride or spite, or diffidence, or that unmanly shame which withholds a man from daring to betray emotion, or love, at the critical point of the relation, he has h[eld] his head and held his tongue?—obert Louis Stevenson.

Start Is Not All

The winner of a long race is usually the one who does not start with a spurt. Some use up their stock of enthusiasm in compiling their New Year resolutions, and have nothing left for the harder task of living up to them. The right way to live the year is not to start off with flying colors and then peter out, but to make it progressive, each day better than its predecessor, each month an improvement on the last.—Exchange.

Brazil Roads

Overabundance of patience, plenty of pluck, and a large measure of stamina are the three essential qualities that motorists in South America must possess, particularly when traveling over Brazilian roads. In southern Brazil roads are not only almost impassable most of the time, but are generally hopelessly impossible from the standpoint of touring comfort. Traversing them constitutes one of the most severe tests to which motor cars and tires can be subjected.

WEEK'S ACTIVITIES AT FIRST DUTCH CHURCH

The Sunday school picnic of the First Dutch Church will be held at Golden Rule Inn on Thursday, leaving the church about 10:30 a. m. Cars are being provided for all the members of the school, including the Home Department and also all parents of the Sunday school scholars. It has always been a family picnic, and everybody is welcome to spend a day of pleasure with the school. Each family will take its own basket lunch. Mirror Lake furnishes rare opportunity for bathing and rowing and other sports.

On Thursday evening at 7:30 the preparatory service will be held, followed by a meeting of minister and elders to welcome new members into the church.

Sunday, July 1, the Fair Street Reformed Church unites with this church as it will continue to do all of July, according to a long established custom, the First Church worshipping with the Fair Street Church during August and on September 2.

Excelsior Band Concert Enjoyed.

A large number of people Tuesday evening enjoyed a two hour instrumental concert given by Excelsior Hose Company brass and reed band on Fair street. The band was seated on the upper balcony of the Elks' Club, the listeners standing on the sidewalk and in front of Fireman's Hall opposite. This concert was the first of a series of free concerts to be given each Tuesday during the summer months, by the band members who donate their services to the public.

The Fourth at Shawangunk.

There will be a Fourth of July celebration at the Shawangunk Church grounds on Wednesday, July 4. A baseball game will be staged by semi-professionals during the afternoon. The Walden band will furnish music. At 6 p. m. a hot chicken supper will be served.

Cornell Park Flag Pole.

Workmen were busy this morning erecting a flag pole in Cornell Park on Wurts street. The board of public works has completed the work of planting in the park and also has done considerable sodding, adding much to the park's attractiveness.

Wichita Falls, Texas, June 27 (AP). —A boy was killed and two other persons were injured early today when a tornado swept a path about a mile in width on the Henrietta road, near the Clay-Wichita county line.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 27 (AP).—Marking up of the call money rate to 7½ per cent, the highest since June 7, 1921, checked a brisk upturn in today's stock market. Early gains of 1 to 4 points in the standard rails and industrials and 5 to 12 points in a few specialties were cut down, but prices generally held above the closing quotations of yesterday. Trading was on a slightly broader scale than yesterday up until the time the high money rate went into effect.

Prices started forward at the opening under the leadership of the copper shares. Fixing of the renewal rate for call money at 7 per cent failed to stem the advance, but when banks called $20,000,000 in loans and the rate was advanced to 7½, bullish enthusiasm began to wane.

Radio, which had advanced 2¾ points to 177⅛, fell back to around 174¾; Wright Aeronautical dropped from 140½ to 137½; Greene Cananea Copper from 105¾ to 103, and Curtiss from 99¾ to 96¼. American Linseed sagged 2 points below yesterday's final quotations, and Delaware & Hudson nearly 5 points. U. S. Rubber common sold at 27, the lowest price in years.

In the early upturn, National Tea had soared 12 points. Adams Express 10, Commercial Solvents, 8¾, Montana Power 8, Houston Oil 6½ and Johns Manville and Electric Auto Lite 4 points. Texas & Pacific Railroad common moved into new high ground at 155¾.

Quotations given by Parker McElroy & Co., members N. Y. Stock Exchange, 120 Broadway, New York city, branch office, 260 Fair street.

POULTRY

REMOVE ROOSTERS FROM HEN FLOCKS

Now that the hatching season is over and fertile eggs are no longer needed, every poultryman should remove all of the male birds from his flock. For, says C. S. Platt, assistant poultry husbandman at the New Jersey experiment station, the production of fertile eggs for market purposes is never desirable, though it cannot be avoided during the hatching season.

On many farms there is a desire to keep over some of the better cockerels and the temptation is to allow these to remain in the flock. The number retained, however, should be reduced to a minimum by careful selection. When this is done the few that are kept should be segregated. It must be remembered that a new crop of cockerels will be reared during the coming season and good, vigorous cockerels are usually better than older birds anyway.

The exception exists on those farms practicing pedigree mating. Where this is done it is absolutely necessary to keep over all of the male birds until one knows what their daughters have done. A proved male is practically priceless and as one cannot determine in advance exactly what his daughters will do it becomes necessary to keep the birds ever until they have had a chance to show their ability.

Male birds that are kept should be given plenty of sunshine, green food, and yellow corn. They will not need much animal protein. A free range and whole yellow corn fed twice daily will take care of their needs until the next breeding season. If kept confined, cod-liver oil should be provided in addition to the corn and green food. One per cent in the grain would provide sufficient oil. Under confined conditions it will also be necessary to be on the watch for lice and mites all of the time. These can be kept under control by painting the roosts with a carbolineum product and by dusting the birds with sodium fluoride.

Fatten Broilers Before Sending Them to Market

Profitable gains usually will be made by broilers that are fattened for a period of two weeks before they are sold. However, one should not expect to fatten broilers for longer than a two weeks' period, as the gains will not be rapid and profits are likely to disappear. Cockerels should be separated from the pullets and confined to a small yard. A roosting shed should be provided for the fattening birds.

A satisfactory mash mixture for fattening broilers is one composed of two parts of cornmeal and one part wheat middlings. This should be mixed with milk and fed for fifteen to twenty-minute periods three times daily. A liberal feeding of cracked corn should be given late in the afternoon. If liquid milk is available, it can be kept before the birds during the fattening period and no water need be given. Plenty of water should be provided if no milk is fed.

Slow-Feathering Chicks Common in Some Breeds

"Slow feathering or 'naked' chicks are quite common in general purpose breeds, and sometimes occur in the lighter breeds," says Prof. C. W. Carrick, Purdue university. "Such chicks are usually those that lack the vigor necessary to grow rapidly but chicks may also become stunted from improper feed, chilling, or crowded conditions during the first few weeks of their lives. "Whatever the cause may be, little can be done to make such chickens profitable. If pullets, they lay poorly and are likely to be susceptible to disease. They should be marked with leg bands when five or six weeks old, and marketed as soon as they reach sufficient size, otherwise they may feather out slowly and be kept in the flock to produce similar chicks next season."

By constantly culling out these low-vitality chicks, one can practically eliminate them in the future offspring.

Good Laying Mash

A farmer who raises corn, wheat, and oats can work them into a good laying mash. It can consist of 100 pounds of ground corn, 100 pounds of ground oats, 200 pounds of ground wheat and 100 pounds of meat scrap. The addition of 2 per cent bone meal, 2 per cent ground limestone and 1 per cent fine salt will furnish minerals. Adding 50 pounds of bran to the 500 pounds of mash helps to give it more bulk, when ground wheat is used in place of bran and middlings.

Prevent Diseases

It is an established fact that most of the tuberculosis in fowls is found in the older birds. When the older birds are eliminated, the principal spreaders of tuberculosis are eliminated. Therefore the sale of birds after they have completed most of their first year laying cycle is not only the method of securing the highest production per hen but also a method of helping to prevent spread of disease such as tuberculosis and other ailments.

Italian Public Surprised.

Berlin, June 27 (AP).—Dispatches from Rome to the Mittag Zeitung today say that the Italian public was surprised that General Nobile, leader of the Italia expedition, should have been saved first.

Ferguson Takes De Soto Agency

Alexander Ferguson of the Ferguson Cadillac LaSalle, Inc., has taken the agency for a new line of automobiles which will be announced on July 15. The only thing Mr. Ferguson, who has never seen the new car, knows about it is that it will be a six-cylinder job, coming in six body types, all on the same chassis, and will sell for less than $1,000 delivered.

Workmen were busy today lettering the name of the new car on the show room windows of the Ferguson salesrooms in the Governor Clinton apartment building on Clinton avenue, at Albany avenue. The new car is known as the DeSoto and is a product of Walter P. Chrysler.

With the addition of the DeSoto to his line of cars Mr. Ferguson will carry a line to suit every purse ranging in price from $2,500 to $5,500 in the higher price cars and the new car to sell for less than $1,000.

Mr. Ferguson will be the sole distributor for Ulster county and he will have associate dealers in New Paltz, Saugerties, Ellenville, Highland and Phoenicia.

The new DeSoto car is described as the apple of Mr. Chrysler's eye, and is said to be something entirely new in the low price car field. The new car will be announced to the public on July 15.

Society Notes

Roosa-Rogers.

John M. Roosa of New Paltz and Miss Mary Rogers of 249 Washington avenue were married in Fleischmanns on June 21 by the Rev. F. P. Venable. They were attended by Ralph I. Roosa and Miss Grace E. Rogers.

Boeniger-Myers.

State Trooper John J. Boeniger of Sidney and Miss Marguerite D. Myers of 88 Henry street were married on June 26 by the Rev. Louis M. Cusack of St. Joseph's Church. They were attended by Edward Mahoney and Miss Evelyn Myers.

Von Valkenstein-Hollerith.

Baron T. Von Valkenstein of Fleischmanns and Miss Lorle Hollerith of New York city were married Monday at the manse of the Rondout Presbyterian Church by the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Charles G. Ellis. They were attended by Carl G. Fischer, a friend of the baron's. During their stay in Kingston Baron and Baroness von Valkenstein were guests at Fischer's Hotel on the Strand. They will reside in Andes, Delaware county.

Baron-Brandow.

New York, June 27.—A marriage license was issued at the Municipal Building here Tuesday to a former resident of Kingston, N. Y., Miss Anna May Brandow, 20, of 371 West 116th street, New York, and Harry Baron, 24, of the same New York address. They stated that they would be married June 30, in New York city. Miss Brandow was born in Kingston, the daughter of William and Geneva Bedford Brandow. Mr. Baron is the son of Samuel and Anna Baron and was born in New York city.

Christiana-Scott.

Monday morning, June 25, Miss Violet Scott, daughter of Mrs. F. Scott and the late William Scott of Whiteport, became the bride of Claude Christiana of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father O'Reilly at St. Peter's Church, Rosendale. The attendants were Anna Scott and Joseph Noonan. After the wedding breakfast served at the home of the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Christiana left for a wedding trip through Ontario. On their return they will reside at 1 Clinton avenue. Mr. Christiana is employed by the New York Central railroad.

A Birthday Party.

Saturday, June 23, a birthday party was given for Charles Hoehing at his home on Yarmouth street. A pleasant time was had by the guests who attended. The feature of the party was a Charleston exhibition given by Charles, who is 11 years old, and Cecelia Cullen. The home was prettily decorated in red and blue for the occasion. Those present were the Misses Emma Hinkley, Gertrude Ummerle, Edna Sickles, Marie Elliott, Doris Newkirk, Cecelia Cullen, Raymond Deyo, Leslie Proper, Warren Newkirk, Robert Cole, Arthur Deyo, Edward Fischang, Jr., William Scafidi, Charles Hoehing, Mrs. N. Scafidi, Mrs. Gilbert Hinkley.

Boeniger-Myers.

A very pretty wedding was performed Tuesday morning at 10:45 o'clock, when Miss Marguerite Myers, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Myers of 88 Henry street, became the bride of State Trooper John J. Boeniger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Boeniger of Warren, R. I. The ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Louis M. Cusack, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, where the wedding took place. The attendants were Miss Evelyn Myers of Shokan, a niece of the bride and Edward Mahoney of Kingston. Members of Troop C of Sidney barracks were in attendance. The bride is a popular employe of Mrs. Zucca's millinery store. The groom is stationed at Phoenicia where he is popular with everyone around that vicinity. After the reception which was held at the home of the bride, the happy couple left for an extended trip south.

Duffy-Tylec.

A pretty wedding took place at the Church of the Immaculate Conception Sunday, June 24, at 2:45 when Miss Anna V. Tylec of 30 East Pierpont street became the bride of Martin F. Duffy of Port Ewen. The marriage was performed by the Rev. K. Litowski of Westfield, Mass. The bride was attractively attired in a white satin dress trimmed with Spanish lace and pearls. She wore a veil which was caught with orange blossoms and Spanish lace. She carried a bouquet of white rosebuds and swansonia. The maid of honor was her sister, Miss Sophie Tylec, and her bridesmaid was Miss Helen Janeczek. They were both attired in yellow georgette dresses and wore picture hats to match. Their bouquets were of yellow tea roses. John Duffy, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Walter Tylec, brother of the bride, acted as usher. A dinner was served at the bride's home at which 50 guests were present from Port Ewen, New York, New Jersey, Poughkeepsie and Kingston. After a wedding trip to New York city and other points of interest Mr. and Mrs. Duffy will reside at 498 Delaware avenue where a newly furnished home awaits them.

Institutions Here Receive Legacies

Home for the Aged, Industrial Home and City of Kingston Hospital Each to Receive One-third of Residuary Estate of Mary W. Smith.

Although the probate certificate filed with the will of Mary W. Smith of Johnston avenue, Kingston, in the surrogate's court, which will has been admitted to probate, gives the value of the estate as more than $5,000 real and more than $5,000 personal, it is said the total value will be more than $100,000. Among beneficiaries named are the Home for the Aged, the Industrial Home and the City of Kingston Hospital. The amounts they will receive are unknown, according to the probate certificate, but according to those who are supposed to know these institutions will each receive a large sum. The will was executed November 29, 1922, and witnessed by Philip Elting and the late Howard Chipp. The Kingston Trust Company was named as trustee and executor, but a codicil made June 1, 1925, revokes the nomination of the Trust Company and the State of New York National Bank is named instead as trustee and executor, to which letters testamentary were issued.

Mrs. Smith, after directing that her body be cremated, devises $250 to Greenwood Cemetery, the interest to be used towards care of the family burial plot. Bequests are made as follows: Emily C. Wright, Wilbraham, Mass., a friend, $500; George H. Mead, West Springfield, Mass., $1,000; Mrs. Albert Bass, Floral Park, N. Y., $1,000; Mrs. Clara Wright, friend, East Orange, N. J., $1,000; Miss Nina Smith, Nassau, N. Y., all table linen and certain flat silver; Ernest Bolton, New York, Sheffield silverware, lusterware and fine glassware, including Bohemian glass; Miss Mary MacLean, Brooklyn, a diamond and emerald ring, also certain silverware; Frank C. Herrick, Albany, all remaining diamonds, also cameo ring, fine laces, art linens, with request that they be divided between his two daughters; Frank C. Herrick, Albany, the sword of her husband, his miniature, his army papers and all of decedent's paintings and water colors; Miss Nellie Mead, West Springfield, Mass., two Turkish rugs, one a hall runner, the other a Senna; to her sister, Kate Dooley, is given all clothing, jewelry, household furniture and effects not hereinbefore bequeathed.

All the rest, residue, and remainder is left in trust of the executor to invest and reinvest, to receive rents, issues, income and profits and after deducting lawful expenses and charges to pay over to Kate Dooley, sister of deceased, during her natural life the balance of said rents, issues, income and profits, and upon her death to pay over one-third of residue to Ulster County Home for the Aged in memory of Bernard N. Smith, her deceased husband; one-third of residue to Industrial Home in memory of deceased, and one-third of residue to Kingston City Hospital. Kate Dooley is dead.

By the codicil, witnessed by Virgil B. Van Wagonen and Helen A. Jones, the legacy to Mrs. F. H. Wright is revoked as she has died; to Nina Smith in addition to linens, etc., is left an onyx and diamond pendant. The designation of the Kingston Trust Company as trustee and executor is revoked and the State of New York National Bank is nominated as executor, that institution being the petitioner for the probate of the will and codicil. Virgil B. Van Wagonen is attorney for the petitioner.

About the Folks

Agriculture Wins Sharp Skirmish

Houston, June 27 (AP).—Shunting prohibition aside temporarily, friends of organized agriculture won a brief but sharp skirmish today before the resolutions committee for representation on the sub-committee which is to draft the 1928 national Democratic platform.

John A. Simpson, Oklahoma member, urged that Thomas E. Cashman, the representative from Minnesota, who is head of a farm organization, be among the 11 on the drafting body and when Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, the chairman, failed to include Cashman, Simpson moved his appointment. Senator Glass of Virginia countered with a point of order against the motion, saying that if the committee tried to give representation to all of the industries of the nation it would be fighting over the personnel for the better part of the day.

This aroused F. J. Thomas of Nebraska, who reminded the committee that the farmers had been excluded from the councils of the Republican party.

"We must concede that agriculture will be the paramount issue in this campaign," he added, "and the farm organization should be represented on this drafting committee."

Characterizing the Glass move as "simply a parliamentary trick", Simpson declared that the sub committee was the most important body of the convention, since it would actually draft the declaration upon which the party would act for a grant of power from the American electorate.

Senator Caraway of Arkansas, an ardent supporter of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, interrupted to suggest that Simpson ask unanimous consent that Cashman be added to the committee. That consent was obtained.

Third Session Called to Order

Sam Houston Hall, Houston, Texas, June 27 (AP).—The third session of the Democratic national convention was called to order by Temporary Chairman Bowers today at 11:44.

The Smith delegation from Louisiana, the District of Columbia and the Panama Canal zone were seated by the convention without even a roll call after the credentials committee recommended dismissal of contests against them. Minority report of "protest" was filed by Colonel Carl L. Ristine of Missouri, who waived a record vote.

Local Death Record

Mayme Bruck, wife of Charles Grece and daughter of Mrs. Helena Bruck, died at her home, 275 Claremont avenue, Jersey City, N. J., on Monday. Funeral from her late home at 10 o'clock Thursday morning with interment in Holy Cross cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Pine Hill, June 27.—Mrs. Fred C. Blodget, aged 67 years, a life-long resident of this village, died at her home on the Pine Hill road, on Monday afternoon. Deceased is survived by her husband, of this village, and one sister, Mrs. Jennie Hasbrouck, of Liberty, N. Y. Funeral services at her late residence Thursday at 2 p. m., standard time. Interment in the Pine Hill cemetery.

Albert H. Rose, 67, died at his home in Highland on Monday. He was a painter by trade. Besides his wife, who was formerly Miss Frances Terpening, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orlando Terpening of Esopus, he is survived by one daughter, Serena, wife of Harry Albertson of Highland, and two sons, Louis and Casper, both of Highland. Funeral services Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Highland Methodist Church. Interment in Lloyd cemetery.

The funeral of Louise S. Chilton, wife of William E. Chilton, Jr., and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Schoonmaker, who died in Charleston, W. Va., on June 24, was held from the home of her parents on West Chestnut street this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Services were conducted by the Rev. Gregory Mabry, rector of Holy Cross Church, and the Rev. Charles Mercer Hall of Bridgeport, Conn., former rector of Holy Cross Church. Interment was in Montrepose cemetery. The bearers were Bernard Barnes of Charleston, W. Va., Alexander Craighead of Dayton, Ohio, Thomas Dent of Philadelphia, Pa., Arthur Hiltebrandt, Charles H. DeLavergne and William Winston, all of Kingston.

The funeral of Mrs. Maria J. Barnhart who died Saturday last, was held from her late home, 105 Abeel street, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, thence to Trinity Methodist Church where at 2:30 funeral services were held, the Rev. G. L. Withey, pastor, officiating. The church was well filled with sorrowing relatives and friends. During the service, two favorite hymns of Mrs. Barnhart were sung. There were a number of beautiful floral tributes. The casket bearers were William Geary, Conrad Shuler, Richard Smith, Edward Arnold, Edward Burns and Thomas Duley. Interment was in the family plot in Montrepose cemetery, the Rev. G. L. Withey accompanying the funeral cortege and conducting the committal service as the body was laid to rest.

Detective Killed In Fall.

Buffalo, N. Y., June 27 (AP).—Detective Sergeant John J. Keon was killed, almost instantly, early today when he fell over a balcony railing on the third floor of police headquarters. He was 51 and had been a member of the Buffalo police department eighteen years. Keon was widely known in police circles. His outstanding work was in connection with narcotics.

Governor Recalls Campaign Days

Albany, N. Y., June 27 (AP).—On the eve of his apparently certain nomination as candidate for the presidency, Governor Alfred E. Smith today recalled political campaigns of the days when he was a ragged ... on the sidewalks of New York, ... ing the doggerels and even ... one of the songs that featured the ...

"I can remember the Blaine-Cleveland campaign in 1884," he said. "They used to have street lamps in those days with cross bars near the top that a boy could climb up and sit on. One night I watched from one of those seats as the Democrats put on a parade. They had oil cloth capes and kerosene torches that smelled so ... they'd knock you dead. There wasn't any music, but they marched to the rhythm of their shouted: 'Blaine, Blaine, James G. Blaine; a continental liar from the state of Maine.'

"The next night I was up on the lamp post again and saw the Republicans parade and recite a doggerel about Cleveland that was famous at that time. And they had on the same capes and carried the same torches; anybody could ... them that wanted to."

The governor then recalled a ... the opponents of Cleveland used in their campaigns and sang a verse in a throaty tenor. The words were somewhat as follows:

"Look our, Grover, your term is going to end.

"Listen to the train coming round the bend.

"It's full of Harrison men.

"Goodbye, oh, Grover, Goodbye."

Governor Smith did not indicate what he thought of the relative merits of old time and modern campaign methods and would say nothing about his opinion of the Bowers keynote address or any of the happenings at the Houston convention.

His day was taken up with state business. But he indicated he might occasionally tune in on the convention.

Odds and Ends

The regular meeting of the W... and Ayes Club will be held at the home of Marjorie Greene, 173 O'Neil street on Thursday evening at 7:30.

ALLEGED LIQUOR FOUND ON CIRCUS TRAIN

Malone, N. Y., June 27 (AP).—The circus trains of the Barnum and Bailey and Ringling Brothers show today were stopped at this port of entry from Canada while customs men removed between six and seven hundred bottles of alleged beer, wine and liquor from the four sections.

The train crossed the international border here, bound from Montreal to Ogdensburg. The officers were able to find but a few persons aboard the coaches who admitted ownership of the seized articles. Fines of $2 a bottle for the beer and $5 a bottle for the liquor were imposed.

THE JOINERS.

News of Interest to Members of Fraternal Societies.

A. W. Reynolds Temple, Pythian Sisters, will meet in their rooms, Thomas street and Broadway, this evening. There will be initiation and all members are urged to be present.

The next regular meeting of Atharhacton Rebekah Lodge, No. 357, at Mechanics' Hall on Thursday evening, June 28, will be a get together meeting, and there will be a covered dish supper. A pleasant evening is anticipated. All members should attend, as this will be the closing meeting before vacation.

West Nyack Hotel Raided.

The prohibition agents stationed in Kingston raided the West Shore Hotel at West Nyack, N. Y., on Tuesday, the same day they made a catch at Spring Valley, and arrested Albert Braun on a charge of sale and possession. At the place was found a quantity of alleged Scotch and rye whiskey, wine, applejack, ale and gin, when the agents visited the place at 10:30 in the morning. The justice before whom he was arraigned held Braun in $500 bail to appear before a U. S. commissioner in New York.

DIED

BLODGET—At Pine Hill, New York, Monday, June 25, Marie E., wife of Fred C. Blodget.

Funeral services will be held from her late residence Thursday, June 28, at 2 p. m. standard time. Relatives and friends are invited. Interment in Pine Hill Cemetery.

GRECE—Mayme Bruck, wife of Charles Grece and daughter of Mrs. Helena Bruck, died at her home, 275 Claremont avenue, Jersey City, N. J.

Funeral from her home at ... o'clock Thursday with interment in Holy Cross cemetery, Brooklyn, N. Y.

In Memoriam.

In sad and loving memory of Leonard Hazzard who passed away June 27, 1927.

Borne on angels' wings to Heaven,
Glad the summons to obey.
Ready when the signal was given,
Beckoning him to realms of day.
But in our home there's a vacant chair,
A voice we loved is still.
We miss dear father everywhere,
But 'twas the Master's will.
(Signed)
MR. AND MRS. LESLIE MUNS AND FAMILY.

Confident Governor Will Be Named, They Are Willing to Let Convention Take Its Normal Course—Avoiding Friday Superstition.

Houston, June 27 (AP).—Supporters of Governor Smith from his home state liked the first day of the Democratic Convention. Under their specific policy of trying to get along with everybody, the peaceful events of the two sessions were highly satisfactory.

The New York leaders believe their friend and neighbor will be nominated for the presidency some time tomorrow. Earlier forecasts pointed to the balloting Friday, but later suggestions have been that while delegates to the convention are not superstitious, it would seem just as well to nominate Thursday as Friday.

From the first the Smith leaders have said that they were prepared to let the convention take its normal course. Confident that Smith's nomination was inevitable, they declared nothing was being done to hurry it. Now a statement has come from Smith headquarters that indications point to a first ballot nomination. If such is the will of the convention, said George R. Van Namee, speaking for his colleagues, the men most actively behind the campaign of the New York governor can only acquiesce gracefully.

"Dry" Woman to Second Smith.

The nomination of Governor Smith by Franklin D. Roosevelt probably will be seconded by six speakers, five men and a woman. Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming, will say a word for the New York governor. Mrs. Ross spoke in California and other Pacific coast states in advocacy of Smith's candidacy.

She is a dry. Another dry expected to make a seconding speech for Smith is Senator Barkley of Kentucky.

Only one nominating speech can be made before Governor Smith's name is before the convention. Arizona will yield to New York, when the roll is called. Only Alabama precedes Arizona in the call of states.

Mayor Walker Arrives Late.

Mayor Walker was very late at the convention, but not late for Claude G. Bowers's keynote speech. "Jimmy" had his hotel room equipped with a portable radio set and heard Mr. Bowers's speech there, rushing to the convention hall to take his seat in the delegation as soon as the address was concluded.

As the New York mayor appeared a rush was made to shake his hand by those near the entrance and four big policemen went to his rescue. One went ahead, two others grasped his arms and one came behind to thwart any attack from the rear.

"Did you really hear the speech by radio?" he was asked.

"I did," he said. "The reception at the hotel from the hall was perfect."

The mayor arrived just in time to hear an announcement that the rules committee, of which he is a member, would meet at 10 a. m.

"Can you get to a 10 o'clock meeting?" brought the emphatic response:

"I'll be there if I have to get up at 7 o'clock."

The mayor has few 10 o'clock appointments at home.

State Objects to Saugerties Road

Would ... site.

William ... to the plan ... may ... present ... a factory ... for the ... the present ... involve a great ... damage.

Several other ... examined the plans at ... did not ...

The plan of the railroad calls for three complete ... foot spans and an equalizing span and it will provide for the construction of two additional tracks for the railroad underneath. Their plans call for a reinforced concrete while the Department of Public Works' plan calls for two 70 foot steel spans with an equalizing span.

Following the discussion the hearing was adjourned subject to the call of the chair.

What Railroad Plan Provides.

By the plans of the railroad as submitted, the present roadway would be closed to traffic which would be diverted to the new bridge which would be located 160 feet north of the present crossing. The crossing calls for a 30 foot structure crossing the tracks at a height of 22 feet. The highway approaches would be graded to a width of 22 feet between shoulders of the embankment and paved to a width of 18 feet with water bound bituminous macadam. Cable guide rails three feet high would be provided and curves would be widened beyond the 18 foot width. The overpass would start 680 feet east of the present grade crossing and veer to the north. The return to the present roadway on the west approach would be 670 feet west of the present grade crossing where it would rejoin the present roadway. The grade on the approaches would be 6 per cent.

A connection would be provided from the end of the structure at the east to the Cooper property, twenty feet wide with a 14 foot roadway. From the end at the west there would be an entrance to the present private roadway graded to a width of 24 feet with a 16 foot water bound macadam roadway. The present grade crossing would be closed.

The State's Plan.

The plan as submitted by the State Department at a prior hearing called for a similar structure but would eliminate curves on the overpass by taking advantage of present curves in the roadway. That plan called for the bridge to leave the roadway as at present located at the curve just to the west of the tracks at the lane and rejoining the present highway to the east at the curve beyond the tracks. Not only would there be no appreciable curve to the overpass but the two turns now in the road would be taken advantage of and eliminated. It would call for a slightly different structure over the tracks than that proposed by the railroad. This the railroad contends would be more costly.

They say canned grapefruit is quite like the fresh article: When you punch in the top with a can opener it squirts into your eye.

Our idea of a perfect match would be for the woman who names sleeping cars to wed the man who makes the statuary for radiator caps.

The Supreme court has decided that a train has the right of way over its own tracks. But a lot of automobile drivers are still unconvinced.

POUGHKEEPSIE WOMAN LOST $8,000 TO TWO SWINDLERS

Two men jarred Mrs. Victoria Misturo of 32 Abany street, Poughkeepsie, from $8,000 by the oldest swindling method of which the police have any record. The victim is a widow who recently was paid $10,000 by the New York Central railroad, in whose employ her husband had been killed. One man is a Pole, the other a Mexican. Friday the Pole was introduced to Mrs. Misturo and Saturday he introduced the Mexican. Mrs. Misturo accommodated the men in her home and Monday the Mexican produced $8,000, asking her to keep it for him. As an assurance of mutual trust, he told her, she must put $8,000 of her own money with his, and then wrap both bundles of currency in the package. The widow withdrew $8,000 from the bank and was handed a package which she believed contained the $8,000. That afternoon the widow told a friend of the transaction. That led to the package being opened. It contained not $8,000 but some old newspapers.

AUTO ADJUSTED TO ITS DRIVER

One of the Newer Trends in Building Motor Car Here and Abroad.

Making automobiles that are adjustable to the individual driver, instead of compelling the driver to adjust himself to an uncomfortable position in the car, is one of the newer trends in motorcar construction, both in America and abroad.

More than comfort is involved in a correct position. Sitting in proper relation to steering wheel, clutch pedal, brake pedal and controls, means freedom from fatigue and, even more important, safety in driving—for only when the driver is in proper position can he quickly and efficiently operate the controls.

Means of effecting a comfortable driving position formerly was available only in the costlier cars; now a new brougham offers an example of what has been done in the lower-price class.

Variation in Position.

A total variation of five inches in the position of the driver is provided by adjustments in the clutch and brake pedals and also in the front seats. The rubber pedal pads are mounted on substantial bars that are clamped into the clutch and brake levers proper, and these clamps allow a variation of the pedal position totaling two inches.

The adjustability of the front seat, in a fore and aft direction, totals three inches. The two adjustments, in combination, thus allow a total change amounting to five inches. The driver having unusually long legs can drop the pedals two inches and move the seat all the way back, and have five inches more room than a man of opposite build, who will raise the pedals all the way and adjust the seat in its extreme forward position.

Made to Suit Driver.

A combination of adjustments can be made to suit the stout driver. He can move his seat back to give him ample space between steering wheel and cushion, and raise the pedals to keep them in easy reach.

Relative position of front seat and pedals is of prime importance. If there is too little room, the driver will be sitting in a cramped position and will be unable to operate the brake pedal with maximum effect.

When the brake pedal is fully depressed, the driver's leg should not be extended to the utmost—there should be additional thrusting power in reserve, to exert greater pedal pressure if required.

Engine Trouble Often Is Traced to Spark Plugs

When an automobile engine misses at high speed or in climbing hills, the trouble can often be traced to the spark plugs, according to H. Rabezzana, research engineer.

Much of this trouble, he says, is due to the use of improper type plug or spark plug points being set too far apart, or because the plugs are simply worn out.

The gap between the points should not have more than .025 inch clearance or .020 inch in high compression engines.

As spark plug trouble is often mistaken for valve or piston ring trouble, the proper thing to do before making repairs is to have the plugs inspected, which will save unnecessary expense, the engineer says.

Here Is Way Jaywalker Is Cautioned in China

The Chinese system of educating jaywalkers might help in this country, according to the public safety department of the Automobile Club of Southern California.

The club quotes the following admonition to the public in China:

"Now the swift motor car and the street car are just like tigers and if you do not obey the policeman's signals you will not live to grow and acquire many sons, but will be killed and your sons, too, so that your ancestral tablets will be untended. The road is like a tiger's mouth; from its center keep away."

Towing Ropes Attached to a Disabled Machine

If you have to have your car towed, or you are going to tow somebody else be careful where you attach the tow rope or you may do your car or the other fellow's a considerable amount of harm. Do not attach the tow rope to a bumper, radiator guard, or, in fact, anything else but the main structural parts of the car, such as the front axle, cross members, etc.

When your car is to be towed the best place to look on the tow rope is the front axle. This will have to be done on the side near the steering knuckle as the front apron will prevent the rope from being hooked on in the center. Be sure that the rope is hooked on the same side of the towing car as it is on your front axle so there will be no tendency toward a cross pull.

When you are towing another car you can sometimes use the rear axle, but generally there are parts in the way that prevent. In this case attach the rope to the rear spring horns, the rear cross member or even around the shackles.

Do not use the rear bumpers or spare tire bracket. Always start gently when towing a car and always signal the car following in plenty of time when you are going to stop.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Better Performance at Less Cost From Old Cars

How to get better performance at lower cost from motor cars that are several years old, is told in a paper just prepared by H. Rabezzana, research engineer, and known as one of the country's foremost authorities on the internal combustion engine.

To quote Mr. Rabezzana:

"Some engines after they become old have a tendency to 'pump oil.' The reason is that the rings no longer fit tightly. In many cases even new rings are of little value when the cylinder itself is ever so slightly 'out of round.' Sometimes the amount of oil that gets into the chamber is so slight that it cannot be detected as oil, but appears as a thick, or gummy soot upon the head of the piston, or on the spark plugs.

"How to keep such motors running well has long been a problem with repair men. In nearly every instance, new plugs are fouled up within a short time after installation.

"As a remedy, carbon-proof spark plugs of the correct type are the most logical plugs for engines that have a tendency to foul the spark plugs. These plugs also are desirable for cool engines.

"They have what is known as a carbon-proof insulator, with a series of high-temperature fins girdling the lower end. These fins quickly attain sufficient heat to burn off any deposits of soot or oil, thus offering effective resistance to carbon troubles."

AUTOMOBILE ITEMS

A spare fan belt should be carried in every car.

It was brought out that the work of building a sewer for the new T. B. Hospital on Golden Hill had been started, but that the plans for the sewer had not been filed with the board. The county authorities will be notified that before the sewer can be hooked into the city sewer the plans for the proposed sewer must be filed and meet the approval of the board.

To Estimate Street Cost.

The city engineer was directed to prepare a tentative estimate of the cost of grading and topdressing Mountain View avenue and Emerson street, from Main street to Lucas avenue, and submit the estimate to the interested property owners.

Estimate on Sewer Costs.

City Engineer Codwise submitted a report with reference to the petition that a sewer be constructed on Foxhall avenue at Flatbush avenue to Albany avenue and along Albany avenue from the intersection of Foxhall avenue to the city line. It would be impossible to construct the sewer along Albany avenue to extend it to the city line, but it could be built for a length of approximately 500 feet. The cost was estimated at $3,596.

Ordinance for Grade.

City Engineer Codwise also submitted ordinance establishing the grade in Fairview avenue and Mountain View avenue, which were adopted.

Bills and claims were read and referred to the auditing committee, and the board then adjourned.

Modern Rendering of "Hickory, Dickory, Dock"

"Keeping time, time, time, in a rhumic sort of rhyme." . . . Thus the Bells, Bells, Bells. And the tock, tock, tock of the electric-driven clock keeps time, time, time with its chyme, chyme, chyme. You may listen to its tick when the night is extra thick, and know its little hand is the same throughout the land, for its motor-made precision only has one wakeful mission . . . to keep the second, minute, hour, in a universal sameness, without a spell of lameness, on mantel piece and tower. So the tick and the tock of the motor-driven clock is the universal same as it's read from block to block.

And here is the sure, irrevocable morale, with which all other timers refuse to make quarrel: "Spin on, spin on, oh time in thy flight, and set me aright once again for tonight."—Exchange.

New Breed

Dorothy had always wanted a dog, and at last a kind and sympathetic uncle gave her one.

There was a certain amount of discussion among the family with regard to the animal's breed. The uncle declared the dog was an airedale.

Meeting a friend of her father one evening while taking her pet for a walk, Dorothy had an anxious moment.

"Whatever is it?" the other had asked. "A pup, Dorothy? What kind, my dear?"

The little girl tried hard to remember what her uncle had said.

"He's a ne'er-do-well," she replied, after a long pause.

Depended on the Gas

It was his first week in the city, and the things that interested him most were the motorcycles that whizzed by, so he bought a second-hand one and started out. Up one street and down another he went, going faster and faster, and waving to the people on the streets. They wondered, but got out of the way. Policemen rushed out and tried to stop him, but he kept on. In an hour or so he came to a halt, and an officer stepped up to him. "Why didn't you stop when I ordered you to?"

"Stop!" exclaimed the man. "I wanted to, but didn't know how! I had to go till the gas gave out!"

Rosendale Has Doctor.

Dr. Eugene F. Galvin has opened an office in Rosendale over the drug store now occupied by J. S. Stowell. His office hours are from 1 to 3 and from 7 to 8 p. m. and telephone number 18. Dr. Galvin expects to be appointed in the near future to the staff of one of the nearby hospitals.

Famous Old Cathedral

Notre Dame is the cathedral of Paris. Its foundations were laid on the ruins of the Temple of Jove about 375 A. D. The present edifice was begun in 1163.
